

Official Says CIA Coverup Aid Sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — The No. 2 man in the Central Intelligence Agency reportedly has accused former White House aides H.R. Haldeman, John D. Ehrlichman and John W. Dean III of trying to enlist CIA help in a Watergate coverup.

CIA Deputy Director Vernon A. Walters testified in secret Monday before the Senate Armed Services Committee. Later Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., said Walters had testified that Haldeman, Ehrlichman and Dean were "heavily involved" in efforts to misuse the CIA. Another source said one effort had been a Watergate coverup.

The account dovetails with statements by former acting FBI chief L. Patrick Gray III. He testified before Senate Watergate investigators last week, and The Associated Press has obtained an official written digest of his remarks.

With the start of hearings by the special Senate Watergate investigating committee two days away, Chairman Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C., announced the committee voted to ask "use" immunity for Dean and Roy H. Sheppard.

Sources told The Associated Press Sheppard is the man said to have removed eight cartons of documents, including Watergate bugging plans, from the White House complex shortly after the June 17 break-in of Democratic headquarters.

An attorney, Peter H. Wolf, claimed April 19 in court papers that a client, then unnamed, entered the Executive Office building with a pass waiting for him at a guard gate. The documents were returned later to the Nixon campaign committee. Wolf, who sought and failed to keep his client's name secret before the grand jury, had identified him as a low-level campaign staffer.

Ervin said the committee also agreed that none of its members or staff had information to indicate President Nixon's San Clemente, Calif., home was purchased with 1968 Nixon campaign funds. Ervin said he was making the announcement because a newspaper had carried a story saying the matter was being investigated by Ervin's committee.

Dean was at the federal courthouse today giving a pretrial statement in a civil suit filed by Common Cause, asking disclosure of Nixon campaign contributions prior to the April 7, 1972, reporting deadline.

In an interview with Mary McGrory of the Washington Star-News, Dean said he subscribed to the White House attitude toward the Watergate scandal until a month ago.

"I joined and lived in the myth that it would all go away," he told the Star-News. "I hoped it would, but I didn't believe it."

The ousted White House lawyer said the last time he met the President was in a tense encounter in the Oval Office when Dean observed he did not think "it has come to impeachment." He (the President) dismissed him with a pleasantry about "your pretty bride."

On April 30, Nixon fired Dean. The 34-year-old Dean said on Easter Sunday, April 22, the President told him in a phone call "I was still his counsel and wished me and my pretty wife the best and told us to go to church and smile well for everyone. I felt it was a stroking move — don't let old John get out of hand."

He said again that he did not write the report that Nixon mentioned last Aug. 29 in saying no White House aides were involved in the affair.

Naming of Watergate Prosecutor Is Closer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Elliot L. Richardson testified today at a Senate hearing on his nomination to be attorney general that he is somewhat closer to naming a special Watergate prosecutor but couldn't say precisely when it was going to be.

"Within the next couple of days?" asked Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.

"I certainly hope so, but I can't guarantee it," Richardson replied at a fourth day of Senate Judiciary Committee hearings on his nomination.

Earlier he had told newsmen it was possible he might be able to announce his selection during the day.

U.S. District Judge Harold R. Tyler Jr., of New York withdrew from consideration today, saying he is reluctant to resign from the judiciary. Tyler was one of four that Richardson disclosed yesterday was under consideration.

Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., asked Richardson whether or not he expected the Justice Department and U.S. attorneys to withhold indictments in the Watergate case and other alleged political espionage and sabotage until after the appointment of a special prosecutor.

"The answer is no," said Richardson, who now is secretary of defense. As far as he is concerned, he said, U.S. attorneys "will proceed at their own pace without regard to my nomination or the appointment of a special prosecutor."

The other three named by Richardson were:

—Warren M. Christopher, 47, a Los Angeles lawyer who was deputy attorney general in 1967-69 under both Nicholas DeB. Katzenbach and Ramsey Clark in the Johnson administration.

—William H. Erickson, 49, of Denver, a Colorado Supreme Court Justice.

—David W. Peck, 70, a former justice of the New York appellate division and now a senior partner in a Wall Street law firm.

Richardson told the Senate Judiciary Committee he regards all four as highly qualified and said that was the reaction of committee members whom he consulted privately.

He previously had testified that if the committee, and the Senate as a whole, did not approve of his choice he would make another selection.

Richardson said that a judge would have to resign to become special prosecutor and could not expect to receive any future judicial appointment from the present administration — even reappointment to the court post he gave up.

Laboratory Hot

Problems Plague Skylab

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The crippled Skylab space station developed a new problem today when temperatures of 100 degrees were recorded inside the laboratory. The space agency called it a serious problem but still hoped to launch three astronauts to link up with the station on Sunday.

"It's too early to tell if we're in an unmanageable situation," reported flight director Neil Hutchinson. "But the Skylab cluster is hot and it's a problem that we'll have to be able to solve if the mission is to continue."

Hutchinson also reported a problem with a stabilizing gyroscope in the spaceship control system.

These add to the difficulties of space agency experts who are trying to salvage three manned missions from America's first space station.

The laboratory was launched unmanned into a perfect 272-mile high orbit Monday, but suffered a severe blow when two of six solar panels failed to extend properly.

The panels are designed to convert the sun's energy to electrical power. With two panels inoperative, the power supply of the Skylab was cut in half.

Skylab 1 astronauts Charles Conrad Jr., Dr. Joseph P. Kerwin and Paul J. Weitz were to have ridden another rocket into space today to link up with the station for a 28-day space adventure.

But the space agency late Monday postponed the astronauts' liftoff until Sunday to give experts a chance to work out a new flight plan adapted to the reduced power supply.

The failure of the two solar panels to deploy was traced to a mishap 63 seconds after launching of the Saturn 5 rocket when an aluminum micrometeorite shield ripped away from the side of Skylab, damaging or jamming the wing-like devices.

Hutchinson said the absence of the shield, only six-hundredths of an inch thick, apparently is responsible for the heat problems aboard the spaceship.

"It's like Houston on a hot, humid day in there," said the flight director, who was speaking at a news conference at the Johnson Space Center near Houston.

He said temperatures of 100 degrees had been recorded in the center of the 85-ton workshop. Normal temperatures would be in the 60s or 70s, he said.

Air-conditioning units are aboard the craft, but to operate them now would be a serious drain on an already depleted power supply.

Hutchinson said that although "we have a serious anomaly and don't know yet how to cope with it," he was hopeful engineers would come up with a solution in the next two or three days, in time to launch the astronauts on Sunday.

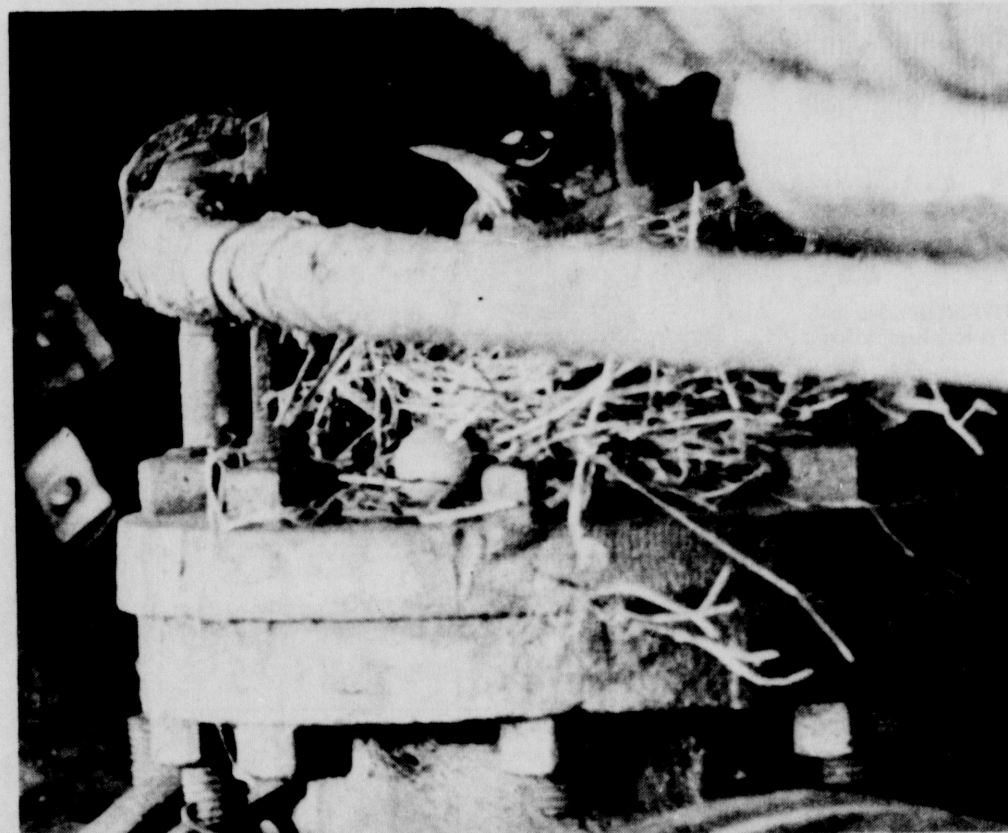

He said the gyroscope problem was not as serious as the electrical or heat problems.

Asked to assess the possibility of a launch Sunday, Hutchinson said: "I've not seen a show stopper yet."

Skylab Project Director William C. Schneider was optimistic at a Monday night news conference that all three planned Skylab missions could be salvaged. But that was before the latest problems cropped up.

"We still have high hopes that they can stay up 28 days, but during the last few

Gold Hits New High; Dollar Hits New Low

LONDON (AP) — The price of gold hit record heights and the U.S. dollar hit record lows in Europe today as another monetary crisis appeared to be building up.

Gold closed on the Paris free market at $124.13 an ounce, the highest price ever recorded anywhere. The Paris market, however, is small, volatile and not always representative of trends elsewhere.

Gold reached $108 an ounce in Zurich and $110 an ounce in London and Frankfurt, all new highs for those centers.

On foreign exchange markets the dollar closed at a record low in Paris and touched new lows in other European centers before the close.

In New York, stock prices dropped sharply for the fourth straight session, and analysts saw falling dollar and skyrocketing gold prices as a factor in the decline.

In London, dealers said another monetary crisis may be developing.

The dealers reported the rush to buy gold was depressing the dollar, and the sale of dollars was driving up the price of gold. Market sources cited a number of reasons for the wave of dollar selling and gold buying, among them:

—Belief that the Watergate scandals will weaken President Nixon's hand in fighting inflation, in liberalizing trade and in

Balance of Payments Deteriorates Sharply

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. balance of payments deteriorated sharply in the first quarter of 1973, due largely to international monetary turmoil during the period, the Commerce Department reported today.

Two measures of the balance of payments both declined. The official reserve transaction balance was in deficit by $10.2 billion and the net liquidity balance was in deficit by $6.8 billion.

The deficit in the official reserve transactions balance, a measure of all official and private financial transactions, was $8.6 billion larger than in the fourth quarter of 1972 when it was $1.6 billion.

The deficit in net liquidity balance was $2.7 billion worse than the fourth quarter deficit of $4.1 billion.

The two deficits reported by the Commerce Department mean the outflow of U.S. dollars into world money markets increased sharply during the first quarter at a time when world governments were expressing concern that the flow of dollars led to international monetary disturbances.

The balance of payments deficits also occurred despite a substantial improvement in the country's trade deficit, which was $900 million in the first quarter, compared with $1.7 billion in the fourth quarter.

All figures in the Commerce Department balance of payments report are adjusted for seasonal variations.

The difference between the two balances is that the net liquidity balance does not include private flows of liquid capital, which are assets easily convertible to cash.

The department said the two large deficits and adverse shifts in both balances were closely linked to large capital outflows during the period.

It said the first was the period of world monetary speculation that led to the 10 per cent devaluation of the dollar on Feb. 12 and the second, at the end of February, led to the closing of official exchange markets in many countries in mid-March.

Vote Cambodia Bomb Fund Cutoff

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Appropriations Committee voted 24 to 0 today to cut off all funds for bombing in Cambodia or Laos.

The committee adopted an amendment to a supplemental appropriation bill by Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., to apply the spending ban for combat activities to all money previously appropriated.

The House voted last week to apply the restriction only to money in the supplemental bill itself and only against its use for bombing in Cambodia.

Eagleton told newsmen that his amendment will be subject to a point of order in the Senate but he will appeal from the ruling of the chair and seek to override the objection by a majority vote.

The funding ban was approved Monday by the appropriations defense subcommittee.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee approved a similar ban.

Eagleton said the over-all ban on use of any money was prompted by the statement of Secretary of Defense Elliot L. Richardson that other funds could be found to continue the Cambodian bombing if the prohibition applied only to the supplemental money bill.

Sen. Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass., said that his amendment to add a ban on combat activity in Laos to the House-passed language applying to Cambodia only

Holiday Measure To Bond

BULLETIN

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Senate gave tentative approval today to a bill to establish a "no fault insurance and automobile accident victim protection law."

The bill, approved 19-14, was amended to make auto insurance mandatory in that persons who do not have a policy would lose their drivers' licenses.

The bill would allow medical expenses of up to $1,000 a person and $5,000 per accident.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri House passed and sent to the governor today a bill to make May 8, the late Harry S. Truman's birthday, a state holiday in Missouri.

His birthdate would replace April 13, Jefferson's birthday, on the state holiday list. The bill also changes Veterans Day back to Nov. 11, Armistice day, from the fourth Monday in October.

An amendment in the Senate said the following Monday, if May 8 falls on a Saturday or a Sunday, could not be considered a state holiday. That would prevent a three-day weekend for state workers unless May 8 falls on a Friday.

The bill, sponsored by Rep. Phillip Scaglia, D-Kansas City, passed 131-15. It was the fourth bill sent to the governor in the 5-month-old session.

The bill would become effective next year.

In Monday night's committee action, a House member said any bill to reinstate the death penalty in Missouri will probably have to be a compromise worked out by a joint Senate-House committee.

Rep. Bob Griffin, D-Cameron, told the Senate Judiciary Committee Monday night that the House Judiciary Committee last week approved a substitute for the version approved earlier by the Senate.

Griffin was appearing before the Senate Judiciary Committee to testify on the version passed by the House several weeks ago. Discussion between Griffin and the senators soon switched to the best way of getting some death penalty bill passed.

Griffin said the method House members were expecting was a conference committee.

One senator suggested the committee hold the House version and wait until the substitute for the Senate version is approved, and then appoint a joint committee to work out the differences.

Griffin said later the House committee substitute was "in effect the House bill," and that a conference committee could work out differences more quickly.

The House version also has an emergency clause to put the bill into effect immediately after it is signed by the governor.

Second Public Forum Tonight

The second community-school board public forum will be held at 7:30 o'clock tonight in the Smith-Cotton High School library.

Organized last year to give citizens an opportunity to meet with the school board and discuss matters of mutual concern, the forum is supported by various civic clubs in the city. The last forum was held in November.

Mrs. Luther Jordan of the American Association of University Women will moderate tonight's session. The public is invited.

Ann Landers

Mother Bewildered By Son's Fiancee

Dear Ann Landers: Our son is 24 years old. He began seeing a divorced woman who is 37, and looks every day of it. I was sure the affair would blow over and said nothing to indicate my disapproval. A few weeks ago they announced their engagement, which was a shock to both my husband and me. This woman is only five years younger than I am, Ann. Need I tell you how I felt when she started to call me "Mother" the day after the engagement was announced?

Last night she called me "Mother" four times during dinner. It ruined my appetite and I got the hiccups during the meal which added to my embarrassment. My husband seemed to think it was funny. I could have killed him.

What should I do about it? Obviously she is doing this to make me feel older and to remind me that soon she will be a member of the family — whether I like it or not. I'd appreciate your advice. —

Excedrin Headache
Dear Ex: Get down to basics. The next time she calls you "Mother," ask her to call you by your first name. The doll is going to be around awhile and there's no sense in going through life with hiccups and indigestion.

Dear Ann Landers: I could never ask my mother this question — she'd kill me. But I do need an answer. Please help me. When I was 15 I made a very big mistake. I was lucky. I didn't get pregnant. I am 18 now and going with a wonderful guy who respects me very much. We are talking about getting engaged when I graduate from high school in a few months and I need to know something. Can a fellow tell if a girl is a virgin? I don't want to go into my past history. Will he know? — No I.D. Please

Dear N.: In most instances there is no definite, irrefutable, physical evidence of virginity. If he's as wonderful as you say, he won't ask questions.

Dear Ann Landers: I would like to address this letter to "Yes, This Means You." The poor woman sounds so sure of her husband I hate to take the wind out of her sails.

I feel terribly sorry for her, or for ANY wife who is 100 per cent certain her husband will never stray because she's a hot number and their sex life is great. Of course, she may be right, if she's lucky enough to have a mature spouse. But usually the men are not so mature. It's a shock for a middle-aged woman to discover that the old boy is stashing girlie magazines and stag movies and bringing home novelty-store tricks to rev up his sex life. After the shock wears off, she figures that if thousands of people are getting their jollies out of these things that maybe they are normal and she's nuts.

Finally she goes to a psychiatrist (where her husband really ought to be) and learns that she's O.K. but he is stuck back there at the 12-to-14-year-old level. She has two choices. She can either dump him, or she can be a loving and patient wife and hope her feelings stay alive while he works through his sexual adolescence. She then admits to herself that nobody changes anybody. Everybody has to change himself. And that is the beginning of wisdom. — I'm Talking About Us, Dear

Dear Talking: Truer words were never spoken. I hope the thousands of women who have this problem will clip today's column and read it when the old boy regresses. It might give them hope.

What kind of wedding goes with today's new life styles? Does anything go? Ann Landers' completely new "The Bride's Guide" tells what's right for today's weddings. America's Junior Miss Returns Home

KANSAS CITY (AP) — America's new Junior Miss, Linda Susan Rutledge, 18, Leavenworth, Kan., returned home Monday to find more than 200 friends and classmates on hand to greet her.

The attractive blond stepped off a flight from Mobile, Ala., site of Friday night's triumph, and through an honor cordon of crossed sabres from the Leavenworth High School ROTC detachment. Among the greeters were Leavenworth Mayor Ben Day and Dan Belton, president of the Chamber of Commerce.

She was presented a bouquet from Maj. Ron David, representing Maj. Gen. John J. Hennessey, post commander at Ft. Leavenworth, where her father, Lt. Col. Gary Rutledge, is a Marine pilot on the staff of the Command and General Staff College.

Outside the terminal, the 35-member Leavenworth High School pep band played as she entered a waiting limousine for the drive to her hometown.

Miss Rutledge said she was excited about the prospects of traveling during her year as Junior Miss and pleased with the $12,000 in scholarship money she won in state and national contests.

She disagreed with those who condemn beauty contests as exploitation of women.

"It (the contest) was very important to me in that I got to know a lot of people, a lot of great girls. I'm against women's lib, except for equal opportunity for jobs," she said.

She said she thought the contest put the emphasis where it belonged, on intelligence, poise and accomplishment rather than looks.

"I guess I'm just the all-around American girl, and that's why they picked me," she said. "Not the model type or really beautiful."

University Completing First Year

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J. (AP) — The tape recorder is being used by Rutgers University as an educational tool to distribute lectures and other class material to students as far away as Alaska.

The students, who receive the tapes by mail, are members of the Open University, which is completing its first year at Rutgers, a state university.

The multi-media program allows the 250 students to study on their own. If they want to supplement their home study and if they live close enough, they can visit a study center here, at the University Heights campus across the Raritan River or at the University College office in Paterson.

Tutors are available at the study centers as are related tapes, films and other materials.

Nicknamed "The University of the Second Chance," and "Everyman's Classroom," the Open University is aimed, according to director Jessie C. Hartline, at "those whose life-styles or personal situation make a traditional classroom arrangement undesirable."

The program sets no formal entrance requirements; candidates are chosen through interviews.

The Open University project began in Great Britain, where $44 million was invested in setting it up as an independent program.

The lectures in the British program are delivered on television.

The Rutgers program is using tape recordings prepared by British professors.

The students here earn full credit for their work in one of three programs available in the humanities, science and mathematics.

Each of the interdisciplinary courses runs for 36 weeks and is the equivalent of five regular college courses. Examinations and other written work are distributed by mail.

Harmless Home Wart Remedy

Dear Dr. Lamb — I was much interested in your answer to the matter about warts removal and decided to write about my experience; perhaps it could help someone else this time.

Back in 1930 my small daughter had a wart come under her fingernail and it pushed the nail up and was very painful, as you might know. I wrote to a doctor's column at the time and asked what I could do as I had done everything our local doctor had told me.

The answer was to get a small bottle of "flexible collodion," cover the wart and keep it covered with this for 10 days or longer. It dries on and acts like a second skin. Then you should be able to lift the wart out with tweezers or your fingers.

It worked like magic and came out, even the core of the ugly thing.

Through the years, I am 69, I have told countless people who removed their own warts, several different kinds, and it worked every time. Sometimes I can't buy the collodion and get "New Skin" which has it for the base but it is not as good. Please tell your readers about this. It's cheap, easy, painless, and works every time and is harmless too. I believe some corn remedies have collodion for a base too.

I have removed seed warts that were as long as my little fingernail and left a deep cone-shaped hole which soon healed with no further trouble.

Thank you for your interesting column; I never miss it.

Dear Reader — Thank you for your suggestion. It sounds simple enough and harmless. I'm including your letter and the one below to give all the readers other suggestions on treating warts.

Dear Dr. Lamb — You answered a correspondent's query about plantar warts, naming several means of treatment. However, you did not mention the best treatment of all.

I spent 23 years, before my retirement, in the Low Temperature Laboratory of the University of California where we liquefied air, fractionating it into liquid oxygen and liquid nitrogen, also liquefying hydrogen and helium. Many times we had occasion to treat plantar warts with liquid nitrogen. By using a small cotton swab, dipping it in liquid nitrogen, and applying it to a wart until it turned white (frozen) the wart was cured. It was practically painless, the skin was not broken to admit infection and all that was necessary, besides the freezing of it, was to cover the wart with a band aid and forget it for a week or so and it would come off like a scab.

The liquid nitrogen freezing destroys the cells and acts much like a third degree burn, but without the toxic reactions of a burn. I have never failed to cure the wart and there has never been any infection. It is much better than acids, an electric needle, surgery, tape, or any other method with which I am familiar. The only disadvantage is that there are relatively few places it can be obtained, except in larger cities. A dermatologist friend said it was quite the best and safest method to treat skin cancers also.

The report was released Sunday on the heels of President Nixon's proposal Friday for a national legal-services corporation, "independent of political pressures," to replace the Legal Services program currently within the OEO.

Nixon has ordered Phillips to dismantle OEO, with the exception of its Legal Services program, by June 30.

The report of the National Colloquium on Legal Services, headed by Edgar S. Cahn, dean of the Antioch Law School, also asserted that political motives of Legal Services officials in Washington are compromising the integrity of the current program. It said federal officials have adopted strategies to turn control over local projects to local politicians or to local bar associations "with known hostility toward the local legal-service program involved."

OEO policies under Phillips, the report said, "have had the widespread effect of generating funding crises, disrupting programs, increasing attorney and staff turnover, lowering the volume of services rendered and undermining the confidence of attorneys and clients in the stability of the program."

Cahn, who led a six-man team in drafting the report, said local programs could face similar problems if Legal Services is transferred from the OEO to a new corporation.

"If OEO can do the things we've detailed, then certainly a private corporation which is not held to the same standards, can certainly do the same and more unless they're watched like a hawk," Cahn said.

The report accused OEO officials of withholding grants vital to the survival of local programs, isolating national bar associations from the antipoverty attorneys, and placing the program's lawyers "under virtual house arrest to prevent them from acting in concert to protect the program's professional integrity."

Few Guarantees on Homes

NEW YORK (AP) — Americans have long been accustomed to obtaining guarantees or warranties, which are the same thing, for products ranging upward in price from bubble gum and shoe laces.

Oddly, on the biggest purchase of a lifetime, which is almost always a house, Americans are neither offered nor do they expect a guarantee from the builder regarding materials and workmanship.

As this decade began, there were about 63.4 million occupied dwelling units in the country, and close to 63 per cent of them were owner occupied. Since then, about 5 million units have been built, few of them guaranteed.

In some communities, insurance programs have been developed to offset the absence of guarantees and there is some likelihood that they could be developed on a national basis.

The NAHB denies this. Martin told a meeting of mortgage lenders last week that such charges "strike at our pride."

The overwhelming number of NAHB members, he said, "are not simply building houses like they used to, but are building them immeasurably better, using all the latest materials and techniques available and permitted to us."

Whether or not this is so, the more than 60 per cent of American families who live in their own homes know that frequent repairs are needed and that a visit from the doctor is often less costly than a visit from the plumber.

Reduction of Shield Asked for Prosecution

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department has asked the Supreme Court to strengthen the hand of prosecutors pursuing "congressional corruption."

The department asked the court Monday to recognize the political and practical difficulties in prosecution of congressional misconduct and to reduce the shield that legislative activity affords against prosecution.

To do so would follow the words of Congress itself, the government maintained in asking for review of a lower court's reversal of convictions won against former Rep. John Dowdy, D-Tex.

Dowdy, a 20-year veteran of the House who did not seek reelection last November, was convicted last year on eight counts stemming from a $25,000 bribe he allegedly accepted to protect members of now-defunct home-improvement firm from prosecution in the District of Columbia.

The U.S. Circuit Court at Richmond tossed out five of the eight counts, reducing Dowdy's penalty from 18 months in jail and a $25,000 fine to six months in jail and a $2,000 fine.

The circuit court said the government had delved into Dowdy's actions as a legislator, actions that are closed to judicial scrutiny by the Constitution's protection of "speech and debate" by lawmakers.

"If allowed to stand, the ruling would make it exceedingly difficult as a practical matter, successfully to prosecute congressional corruption," the government petition read.

Congress was aware of its own power to root out misconduct, but nevertheless wrote laws against official bribery, the government said.

"Given the inherent practical and political difficulties of actually trying a member of Congress before the House or Senate, we submit it is entirely reasonable and proper for Congress to delegate its authority to punish its members by enacting statutes specifically providing for trial in the courts of congressmen who accept bribes or commit other unlawful acts," the government said.

"Moreover, the circuit court simply cast too wide a definition of protected legislative activity," the Justice Department argued.

"In effect, the court's holding permits members of Congress to shield their misconduct from criminal prosecution merely by asserting that acts relating to the misconduct had a legislative purpose or were done in anticipation of possible congressional hearing or investigation," the government maintained.

The word boss has been used in politics since the 1871 Tweed Ring exposure in New York.

DEATH NOTICES

Miss Lillian Margaret Staley

KANSAS CITY — Funeral services for Miss Lillian Margaret Staley, 45, who died May 5 at General Hospital, Kansas City, were held May 8 at the St. James Catholic Church, Kansas City.

Graveside services were held at Calvary Cemetery, Sedalia.

She was born in Sedalia, where she lived until moving to Kansas City 16 years ago. A graduate of Sacred Heart Catholic School, she was a member of St. James Catholic Church and Beta Sigma Phi sorority.

Survivors include her mother, Mrs. Margaret Kipping, and one brother, Edward Staley, both of the home.

Dorsey Payton Hays

OAKLAND, Calif. — Funeral services for Dorsey Payton Hays, 74, who died Saturday morning here, were held Monday in Oakland.

He was born Sept. 9, 1898, son of the late James and Amanda Bowen Hays Payton, south of Fortuna. He married Edna McVickers in 1953, and she survives of the home.

Survivors include one sister, Mrs. Jennie McPherson, Edwardsville, Ill.; and one brother, George Hays, Fortuna.

Cornfeld Is Charged With Fraud

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — Bernard Cornfeld, who introduced mutual funds to Europe, has been ordered to appear before a magistrate on charges of fraud, abetting speculation and mismanagement.

The financial Napoleon was arrested Monday while visiting his 85-year-old mother at his luxurious lakeside villa.

Cornfeld, 45, had crossed into Switzerland from France for a Mothers Day visit. He spent the night in medieval St. Antoine Prison and appeared today in a private hearing before a magistrate.

He probably will be arraigned Wednesday before the Chamber of Prosecution, which will decide if he is to remain in custody. A police spokesman said the charges "are connected with the entire complex question" of Investors Overseas Services, the empire Cornfeld founded in a two-room Paris apartment in 1956.

The company, which had a million clients at its peak with assets listed at $2.5 billion, began collapsing in 1970, and Cornfeld was forced out of control. In 1971, he sold his stock to American financier Robert Vesco, severed all ties with the company and moved to Beverly Hills, Calif.

Vesco was indicted in the United States last week with former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell and former Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans in connection with a secret $200,000 contribution to President Nixon's re-election campaign.

Two weeks ago, a London court fined Cornfeld $1,125 for an "indecent assault" on a 19-year-old California girl, Valli Davis. She testified he had hired her to tend his horses in Switzerland but brought her to his London townhouse, where he entered her bedroom naked and made advances.

In addition to the London house and the Swiss villa, which Napoleon built for Josephine, Cornfeld at the height of his fortune had a Mystere jet, a 13th century castle in the French Alps, a Paris apartment, a suite in the Hotel Carlyle in New York and a fleet of Rolls-Royces and Cadillacs.

The bearded, rotund, 5-foot-5 bachelor also has a taste for Pierre Cardin fashions, an entourage of good-looking young women and midnight parties.

He started Investors Overseas Services after a vacation in Paris that convinced him the large American community in the area was ripe for mutual funds, unknown in Europe. His major contribution to the financial scene was the Fund of Funds, which minimized the problems of financial management by investing in other mutual funds instead of individual stock issues.

HUGHESVILLE — Funeral services for Mrs. A. Charlene Gieck, 52, Route 2, who died Sunday, will be held at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday at the Heckart-Gillespie Funeral Home with the Rev. Philip J. Bowline officiating.

Burial will be in Memorial Park Cemetery.

Motorcycle Accidents Reported

Two youths were injured in three unrelated motorcycle accidents Monday afternoon and evening and one woman complained of neck injuries following a three-car mishap the same day.

Floyd Bunch, 18, 1701 East Harvey, was admitted for observation to Bothwell Hospital with abrasions and possible chest injuries after at 7:21 p.m. collision between his 1970 Suzuki motorcycle and a 1971 Chevrolet station wagon driven by Nancy A. Linsenhardt, 16, Route 2. Both vehicles were headed east on 32nd when the collision occurred approximately 175 feet east of Highway 65.

According to the investigating officer, Bunch thought the station wagon was going to turn left and started to pass on the right side. The collision took place when the Linsenhardt vehicle started to turn right into the High Point School drive.

Phillip Yankee, 15, 501 South Engineer, was treated and released following an 8:48 p.m. one motorcycle accident in which a 1972 Suzuki driven by Kendall R. Haulotte, 16, 906 West Broadway, went out of control and struck the back door at Griff's Burger Bar, Broadway and Massachusetts. Yankee was standing near the open door at the time of the collision. The investigating officer reported Haulotte appeared to have injured his leg but did not know if he sought medical attention.

The other motorcycle mishap occurred at 12:59 p.m. at Third and Harrison. Myron O. Stevens, 80, 408 East 10th, apparently did not see the 1967 Honda motorcycle driven west on Third by Robert David Garner, 17, 812 West Henry, according to police. Stevens was driving south on Harrison at the time of the collision.

Garner told police he was on the way to have the motorcycle's brakes fixed when the mishap occurred.

Mrs. Elizabeth McCauley, 49, Route 1, was driving a 1969 Cadillac south on Limit when, according to police reports, she apparently pulled to the inside lane to pass a truck and could not stop in time to avoid a collision with a 1970 Pontiac driven by Claudia Ann Moore, 36, 2501 Margaret. The Pontiac was stopped behind a 1968 Chevrolet waiting to turn left onto 18th. Driving the Chevrolet was Marva Lee Dick, 50, 1617 West 18th. None of the cars had to be towed from the scene.

Mrs. McCauley complained of a possible neck injury but it was not known if she sought medical attention.

Civic Affairs

Breakfast Tickets Are Now on Sale

The Sedalia Chamber of Commerce's governmental and civic affairs breakfast will be held at 7:30 a.m. Friday at Bothwell Hotel.

Featured speakers at the affair will be state Senator John C. Ryan and state Rep. Peter Stohr. Both men will speak on current state legislation affecting the business community.

Tickets for the breakfast, which is open to all interested persons, can be purchased for $2.25 from the Chamber office, 113 East Fourth. Reservations should be made by Thursday. Chamber Secretary Mrs. Vivian Warren said.

Last Day For Work On Building's Roof

Workmen were scheduled to finish construction of a new roof for the Pettis County Courthouse Tuesday, according to Presiding Judge Harry Walch.

"They did a beautiful job," Walch said, referring to Missouri Builders Service, a Jefferson City roofing firm.

Walch indicated that 10 per cent of the contract will be withheld from the contractor for three months in case deficiencies in the new roof appear. After that time, the bonding company will be responsible for repairs to the roof.

"They'll be coming back in about 30 days to apply a final glass coating," Walch said. Three coats of sealing material were applied to the roof, Walch said.

$10,000 Damage Suit Filed Here

A $10,000 damage suit was filed Monday in Circuit Court here by Carol Mosby, 1500 South Summit, against Kathy Kempton, Route 4, as the result of an accident Nov. 12, 1971, at 1810 West Fifth.

The petition alleges that Miss Mosby was a passenger in a car driven by Miss Kempton and that Miss Mosby suffered injuries when the car struck a parked vehicle.

Says MU President 'Misleading People'

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee charged today that President C. Brice Ratchford of the University of Missouri "is deliberately misleading the people" about appropriations for the Agriculture Extension Service.

"He has never asked to see the letter of intent approved by our committee," Sen. Norman L. Merrell, D-Monticello, said. "So it's obvious that he doesn't know what he is talking about."

"All we're trying to do is get rid of wine tasting and other such ridiculous courses while preserving the 4-H clubs and other valuable work of the extension division."

The Senate committee cut $4 million from the extension division's current budget in deciding on appropriations for the next fiscal year.

Ratchford criticized the action in news conferences around the state, saying the Senate was trying to run the university and that the cuts would cause a loss of more than 400 jobs.

Merrell charged Ratchford was using taxpayers' money by calling in extension people to campaign against the appropriations committee and of carrying on a statewide lobby against the legislature.

"He's turned all of his dogs on the political trail and this is wrong, not only because this is a tax supported institution but also because it is morally wrong to mislead the people in this way," said Merrell, a former school administrator.

Nuclear Reactors Proposed

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The possibility of using nuclear reactors for electrical energy and burying them in limestone deposits in Missouri was suggested today by Gov. Christopher S. Bond.

Bond, reflecting on an energy conference featuring nuclear physicist Edward Teller a week ago, said, "I've seen enough and heard enough to see that we do have an energy crisis."

He said it would cost $300 million to build a nuclear reactor and said putting it underground would cost only an extra $6 million.

"There is a substantial number of sites in Missouri" for nuclear reactors, Bond said, and suggested that Missouri might even export some of the electrical energy from them.

The 34-year-old governor said negotiations for a site had not gone beyond the discussion stage and he had no specific proposals from utilities.

The Public Service Commission in cooperation with other state agencies would have to draw up a list of sites and set up environmental guidelines, he said.

An underground reactor — 200 feet below the surface — might raise river temperatures by one or two degrees, he said, but from information gathered at the energy conference, an underground reactor would be safer to the public and the environment.

He plans to have a list of priorities established in case of fuel rationing for state agencies, Bond said. Hospitals and similar institutions and the highway patrol would be at the top of the list and air conditioning for state offices would be at the bottom.

"We can't afford to cut back on coverage by the highway patrol," Bond said.

"Nature has been against us," Bond commented.

The fuel crisis already has hit Missouri once. Bond had to negotiate with large oil suppliers last winter when the Fulton State Hospital ran low on heating oil.

An ice storm was Bond's second "nature crisis." He called out the National Guard to help restore electricity to southwest Missouri.

All but 17 of Missouri's 114 counties this year have been declared disaster areas at some point, from flooding and tornado damage in the Joplin area.

Bond said the Army Engineers have told him there might be flooding on the Mississippi River again in June. Flooding has occurred off and on since March 6.

Bond plans to hold meetings to plan for any problems that might arise next year from flooding, he said. The Army Engineers already plan to reinforce weakened dikes. There also will be a push for more flood insurance, he said.

Funds Approved For State Park

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal funds have been approved for creation of a new state park in Missouri on 1,000 acres of land once used for strip mining coal.

Secretary of the Interior Rogers C. B. Morton said creation of the park six miles south of Columbia, Mo., will be a demonstration project. The federal share of construction will be $102,000.

The land was given to the state by the Peabody Coal Co. State officials say the new park will include picnicking areas, trails and play fields.

Reclamation of the area was begun by Peabody as mining was completed, Morton said. He said scyammers and poplars now grow on spoil mounds.

The demonstration program, conducted by the Bureau of Outdoor recreation in cooperation with the Bureau of Mines, consists of about a dozen projects involving surface mined lands to be reclaimed for recreation use.

Merrell said Ratchford had never asked to see the legislative letter of intent or called to ask about it. The letter says:

"The University of Missouri should emphasize academic programs, particularly in the fields of medicine and decrease urban extension activities by shifting $2 million from urban extension activities to academic programs."

"There shall be no reduction in rural extension or in correspondence course offerings. No state or other funds used by the university shall be for promoting activities in violation of state or federal laws."

"He dreamed up this (urban agriculture extension) scheme several years ago as director of extension in order to get more money from the General Assembly, but now that we've finally caught up with some of these frivolous programs he's screaming bloody murder and mounting a pressure campaign against us," Merrell said.

"I think Dr. Ratchford had better tend to the multitudinous problems of running a state university and leave the appropriating to us."

Merrell said it was the second time this legislative session that the university has been a party to "deceitful tactics."

"Has Dr. Ratchford already forgotten the deceit discovered by the Senate in the financing of the Missouri Institute of Psychiatry for research instead of a treatment program?" Merrell asked.

Tyler Turns Down Offer To Prosecute

NEW YORK (AP) — U.S. District Court Judge Harold R. Tyler Jr. today said he had turned down an offer from Atty. Gen. designate Elliot L. Richardson to become the special Watergate prosecutor.

Tyler said he was "reluctant to resign as an active judge" although the Watergate assignment was "important."

Tyler, 51, said he notified Atty. Gen. designate Elliot Richardson this morning of his decision, reached about 1 a.m. today at the judge's home in Westchester County.

Judge Tyler, a Republican appointed to the bench in 1962 by President Kennedy, revealed that he first heard that he was being considered for the job last Friday.

He flew to Washington Sunday, to confer with Richardson, he said.

Tyler gave his decision to Richardson before Richardson went to Capitol Hill today to continue testimony before the Senate Judiciary Committee.

"I notified him that after considerable thought I came to the conclusion that as important as this special prosecutor's role should be and will be, I was reluctant to resign as an active judge and do this," Tyler explained.

"It's a decision I didn't reach lightly because I feel very strongly that the secretary and the Senate are trying to work out a program and get the right man to do the right job, which is important."

"I thought it was probably wrong to resign as an active judge, particularly when the ground rules aren't completely settled. The secretary was most gracious and understanding of my problems," Tyler said.

Skylab

days their activity will have to be curtailed because of the power shortage," he said.

"Everybody seems to be holding a post-mortem on Skylab," he said. "But we think we can achieve a lot of our objectives."

And he said there is still a possibility that the Skylab 2 and 3 flights, each scheduled for 56 days later in the year, might be fulfilled. He said that assessment probably can't be made until after the Skylab 1 voyage.

The laboratory, as large as a three-bedroom house, was lofted into a perfect 272-mile-high orbit Monday by a Saturn 5 rocket. Everything was going so well during the first orbit that a flight control official called it a "superbird."

But trouble began even before the Skylab reached orbit.

Just 63 seconds after liftoff, a paper-thin aluminum overcoat designed to protect the lab from micrometeorite hits apparently was ripped from the side of the spacecraft, Schneider reported. This failure apparently damaged two winglike solar panels that were to have extended from the sides of the spacecraft to convert the sun's rays to electrical power.

The two 30-foot panels deployed only partially and are useless. Efforts to dislodge them by radio command failed.

The mishap with the shield occurred 40,000 feet up while the 33-story-tall Saturn 5 was subjected to maximum pressure from high altitude wind shears.

"There are severe vibrations at this point in the flight, and they might have caused pressure to build up under the shield, tearing it off," Schneider said. "We haven't broken down the data yet to determine exactly what happened."

Loss of the two panels reduced the amount of power available on the $294 million spacecraft to about half its average usage of 8,000 watts, he said. The other 50 per cent is being provided by four other solar panels that did deploy on another section of the vehicle.

To help carry the load on the Skylab 1 flight, about 1,200 watts of power will be transferred from the Apollo command ship that will ferry the astronauts to the station, he said.

Dispells Closing Rumors

Neal Reyburn, president of Home Builders Corp., Monday dispelled recent rumors that his firm would soon go out of business.

Reyburn told The Democrat-Capital that his company is currently awaiting a letter of intent from the local carpenters union concerning contract negotiations for this year. If that is received, Reyburn said he will sign Wednesday or Thursday a construction contract to build at least 70 public housing units at Nevada, Mo.

Home Builders has not been in production since Feb. 5, with approximately 112,000 man-hours lost, it was learned.

Speaking about the housing project at Nevada, Reyburn said, "The contract should have been signed last October ... just delay on the part of the government." When asked the cause of the delay, he answered, "Just bureaucratic nonsense. I think ... I just don't know."

Reyburn said all of the work force that will come back will gradually be reemployed. He explained some workers have probably gotten other jobs.

The project at Nevada could include an additional 130 units, but that is still uncertain, Reyburn explained. If the firm is contracted for the additional work, however, it would allow time for continued investigation of "an entirely new concept of merchandising" known as the "home-owned land lease" program. Reyburn explained that investigation is still being conducted to determine whether there is a market for the project. He described it as a whole new financing concept.

Reyburn did say that unless labor contracts are negotiated in the next 30 days for the second and third years, it is unlikely that Home Builders will continue beyond this year.

He said a letter of intent from the carpenters union was expected before this time. He added that he won't sign the construction contract until he gets the letter. Reyburn said rank and file approval of the letter was the delaying factor.

Oakland Mayoral Runoff Is Today

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Voters in this sprawling industrial city choose today between Black Panther Bobby Seale and white businessman John Reading in a runoff election for mayor.

The 36-year-old Seale definitely is the underdog, but few gave him much of a chance even to make a runoff when he declared his candidacy a year ago.

Reading, the incumbent, narrowly missed outright victory in the primary against nine challengers. He got 55,434 votes — only 59 short of a majority that would have prevented a runoff with Seale, a distant second with 21,329.

A local television station's poll last week showed the mayor with 60 per cent to Seale's 18 per cent, with the rest undecided.

ISRAEL: A Flame Rekindled

II. In the Footsteps of Abraham

"Next year in Jerusalem."

70 A.D.
The destruction of the Second Temple.

Now the Lord had said unto Abraham, get thee out of thy country, and from thy kindred, and from thy father's house, unto a land I will show thee. —Genesis 12:1

Some 1600 years before the Christian era, the fringe of land between the Arabian desert and the Mediterranean was peopled by many races. Mostly pagans, the Assyrians, Amorites, Hittites, Canaanites and Egyptians battled over small tracts of land ruled by local chieftains. From the plains of Mesopotamia came a stream of Aramean immigrants who wished to establish themselves in what was generally called the Land of Canaan. They were called Ibrim, or Hebrews, which derives from either their legendary descent from a man, Eber, or rather more likely because they came from Eber ha-Nahar ("Beyond the Great River," the Euphrates).

The Bible identifies one of these men, Abraham, as the first Hebrew. Abraham, now revered as the patriarch by Moslems, Christians and Jews, introduced the concept of monotheism, or the worship of a single god. In return for this firm belief, the Bible recounts that the Lord would make Abraham's people his "children" and that the land of Canaan would be theirs. Moslems, incidentally, trace their descent to a son of Abraham and this belief has through the centuries continued the argument over to whom "the Promised Land" was promised.

The early Hebrews began to establish a culture and spirit in Canaan, yet an organized nation did not take hold. The people lived with war and bondage interspersed with short flights of freedom. In 587 B.C., the Babylonian king, Nebuchadnezzar, destroyed Solomon's temple and put the land to the torch, fulfilling the prophecy of Jeremiah, "Behold ... saith the Lord ... I will make the cities of Judah a desolation without inhabitant." Six hundred and fifty years after the children of Israel set foot on the Promised Land, there was not one of their descendants still in it.

And yet they returned. They were always to return. During a period of relative peace, this time established by the Roman conquerors, an event took place which was to radically alter the course of history, not only in the Middle East, but throughout the world. This was the birth, in about 7 B.C., of Jesus Christ. Some 600 years later, Muhammad was to establish still another great religion in this desert crucible and the three, Christianity, Islam and Judaism, have since been inextricably intertwined.

The Jews chafed under the Romans and the various "kings of the Jews" named by the Romans. Three times they rebelled and three times they were nearly able to throw off the massive yoke of Imperial Rome. Finally, in the year 135 A.D., the forces of General bar Kochba surrendered and the Jews who could not escape were slaughtered. For 1900 years Palestine was conquered and reconquered by Persians, Byzantines, Turks, Crusaders and the British Empire. But not by the Jews who, though scattered throughout the civilized world, kept alive their traditions and their dream: to return to the Promised Land.

Housing Alliance Wins Major Case

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Rural Housing Alliance, an activist lobby group, has won what it says is a major legal case involving the disclosure of government investigation records.

The case involves the investigation by the Agriculture Department of charges that the Farmers Home Administration had discriminated against minority families in Florida.

On May 9, a U.S. District Court here ruled that the Inspector General of USDA must reveal to RHA the basic details of the investigative report, but that "all materials that could identify loan applicants or other persons not serving as public officials are deleted."

Nathaniel E. Kossack, USDA inspector general, told a reporter that it was not decided yet whether the government would appeal the court's decision.

The RHA, meanwhile, says the decision is a big step in the public's drive to find out what is involved in investigations.

"The decision of the court is an opening wedge in the continuing effort to pry loose from government files information that should be available to the public," said Clay L. Cochran, executive director of RHA.

The case stemmed from a report by RHA in the fall of 1971, called "Abuse of power," in which the Farmers Home Administration was accused of denying loans to needy families in Florida on the basis of race.

As a result of that report and subsequent congressional probes, the USDA instigated its investigation. On May 9, 1972, the Office of the Inspector General published a summary report in which it was said that "no substantial evidence" existed to support charges that FHA had erred.

Court Order On Personnel Files Signed

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) — A Wyandotte County District Court judge has signed a court order to force the Kansas City Structural Steel Company to submit its personnel files to the Kansas Commission on Civil Rights.

Judge Harry G. Miller issued the order Monday.

The commission spokesman said it is investigating a complaint against personnel practices at the steel company.

The order was issued after a petition was filed with the court. The petition stated a complaint was filed with the commission March 10, 1972 and later a subpoena was issued calling for the company's personnel files and the company ignored the subpoena.

The petition alleges the company employs too many minority workers in semi-skilled, unskilled or laborer positions and not enough in skilled or white-collar jobs.

Joplin Storm Damage Over $12 Million

JOPLIN, Mo. (AP) — City officials have placed damage from Friday's killer storm at $12.8 million.

City Manager Robert Metzinger said some commercial buildings suffered about $5.5 million damage, private dwellings another $4 million. Damage to vehicles was estimated at $1.25 million, with $800,000 for trees and debris cleanup, $750,000 to public property, $400,000 to public utilities and $100,000 to sidewalks and other thoroughfares.

Civil Defense Director Mrs. Lea Kungie said a 1971 storm resulted in about $2.5 million.

The storm killed three persons and injured 99 others—22 seriously enough for hospitalization. Of the 22, 13 remained hospitalized late Monday.

Expenses Abroad Reported

WASHINGTON (AP) — Kansas representatives spent more than $8,000 and Missouri representatives more than $4,500 on trips outside the United States in 1972, according to reports published in The Congressional Record.

Trips of more than 200 House members on official business took them to numerous countries and they spent the dollar equivalent of nearly $700,000, much of it in foreign currencies owned by the United States and spendable only in the country of issue.

In many cases transportation to the foreign country was by U.S. military aircraft and no transportation charge was listed in the report to the Congressional Record.

Representatives from Kansas and Missouri taking trips outside the country were:

Keith Sebelius, R-Kan., as a member of the House Agriculture Committee from Nov. 18 to Nov. 30 to Algeria, Sudan, Ethiopia, Bahrain, Muscat-Oman, India, Bangladesh, Pakistan, Kuwait, Italy and Spain. He reported expenses of $381.23.

Garner Shriver, R-Kan., as a member of the subcommittee on foreign operations of the Appropriations Committee, to Denmark, Greece, Turkey and Switzerland from March 29 to April 10. His reported expenses were $1,319.

William J. Randall, D-Mo., as a member of the NATO commitments subcommittee of the Armed Services Committee, to England, Germany, Italy, Greece, Turkey, Spain and Portugal from Jan. 9 to Jan. 17. He reported expenses of $1,626.14. He also reported $140.80 on a trip to Canada for an inter-parliamentary meeting.

William Roy, D-Kan., as a member of the subcommittee on labor of the Committee on Education and Labor to Italy, Greece, Yugoslavia and Germany. Reported expenses were $950 for the trip from Dec. 1 to Dec. 19.

Joseph Skubitz, R-Kan., as a member of the Committee on Interstate Commerce from Nov. 16 to Dec. 8 to England, France, Germany and Italy. He reported expenses of $1,611.80.

Larry Winn, R-Kan., as a member of the Committee on Science and Astronautics to the Netherlands, Finland, Russia, Hungary, France, Ireland and England. The reported expenses on the trip from Aug. 19 to Sept. 7 were $2,811.58.

James Symington, D-Mo., as a member of the Committee on Science and Astronautics to Switzerland, France and Germany from April 10 to April 16. His expenses were reported at $1,868.78.

Man Arraigned For Murder Of Gynecologist

OLATHE, Kan. (AP) — Lawrence R. Gross, 37, of St. Louis, was arraigned in Johnson County magistrate court Monday on a first-degree murder charge.

Gross is accused of slaying Dr. George W. Rowney, 49, Sioux City, Iowa, gynecologist, whose body was found in an Overland Park, Kan., motel room in early February of 1970.

Gross is serving a life sentence in Texas for the slaying of a Dallas couple, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Meyers.

Gross was transported to Olathe by car over the weekend from the Texas State Penitentiary. He had written the Johnson County District Court in February asking for a speedy trial or dismissal of the murder charge.

Bond for Gross was set at $100,000 and a preliminary hearing was scheduled for Monday.

Mississippi Still Above Flood Level

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The Mississippi River remained above flood stage for the 65th consecutive day Monday and the National Weather Service said residents along the river could expect another ten days of high water before it drops below flood levels.

The river stood at 37.9 feet Monday, still 7.9 feet over flood stage. It was expected to fall to its 30 foot flood stage May 24 or 25.

The Weather Service spokesman emphasized, however, that the prediction was based on the assumption that no large amounts of rain would fall between now and the end of the month.

A spokesman for the Corps of Engineers in St. Louis echoed the warning, saying that "of the past nine record-setting floods in the area, five have come in June."

The Missouri River at St. Charles remained 6.5 feet above flood Monday at 31.5 feet, but was expected to fall below its 25 foot flood stage several days ahead of the Mississippi.

The flood did an estimated $91.4 million in damage in Missouri and inundated an estimated 1.1 million acres of land.

Police said Mr. and Mrs. Charles Anna and their four children escaped from their burning duplex after they discovered the fire. Mrs. Anna, however, apparently believed one of the children remained on the second floor and she dashed back into the house, authorities said.

Police said Mrs. Anna died of smoke inhalation trying to reach the second floor of the home. She was pronounced dead at the scene.

Mother Dies Upon Going Back Inside Her Burning Home

BELLEVILLE, Ill. (AP) — The mother of four children was killed Monday night when she ran back into her burning home in the mistaken belief that one of her children was trapped in the blaze.

Police said Mr. and Mrs. Charles Anna and their four children escaped from their burning duplex after they discovered the fire. Mrs. Anna, however, apparently believed one of the children remained on the second floor and she dashed back into the house, authorities said.

Police said Mrs. Anna died of smoke inhalation trying to reach the second floor of the home. She was pronounced dead at the scene.

Guilty Plea To Forgery Of Petition

ST. LOUIS (AP) — James E. Meyers, secretary-treasurer of the St. Louis Labor Council, AFL-CIO, pleaded guilty Monday to charges of forging an initiative petition for a $730 million transportation bond issue drive last summer.

Meyers, 43, was cochairman of a statewide committee promoting the bond issue.

Judge Michael Godfrey of the St. Louis Circuit Court ordered a pre-sentence investigation and set June 25 for sentencing. The state recommended a sentence of two years in prison.

Meyers was one of nine persons indicted after an investigation of forged signatures on the initiative petitions. The transportation bond was subsequently removed from the November ballot and two of the petition drive workers, Mrs. Mary Ellen Hayes and William Cuddihy, have pleaded guilty in the case.

The prosecution in the Meyers trial contended that he played a supervisory role in the forgery incident and was as guilty as those who actually forged the signatures.

Misdemeanor charges of verifying a false affidavit are to be heard against three other persons May 29.

Flower Show Set For This Weekend

The 38th Annual Flower Show sponsored by the Sedalia Garden Club Council will be held from 1:30 to 8 p.m. Saturday at Convention Hall in Liberty Park.

Highlights of this year's show will be displays created by the Sedalia Seedlings, a junior club composed of first through sixth graders, and table settings with floral arrangements suitable for several themes such as Easter, Graduation, Mother's Day and Father's Day.

In addition to the creativity classes, a nature, art and industry award will be given this year, publicity chairman Mrs. Harold Anderson said. The exhibit may be contrived, man made, discarded forms or a combination. Some form of plant material, dried or fresh, must be included she said.

Educational exhibits planned by the conservation committee will show plant propagation and terrariums.

"Springtime Beauty" will be the theme of the artistic design division with class names such as "Signs of Spring," "Peace in the Valley," "Misty Shadows," "Woodland Scene," and "Free as the Breeze."

The public is invited to attend as well as compete in all classes with the exception of four which are reserved for garden club members, Mrs. Anderson said. This year's event is being coordinated by Mrs. Keith R. Springer, chairman, and Mrs. Cecil Bohon, council president.

Garden Club Notes

Mrs. Robert Daniels, 2207 South Kentucky, hosted the Friday meeting of Garden Club No. 4 where 19 persons attended for a talk on litter by Mrs. Walter Banning.

A film taken throughout the United States showed how landscapes have been spoiled by litter.

Mrs. Banning read an article on how garbage and waste are being recycled and used to generate electricity.

In the horticulture category Mrs. Lois May won first on ferns. Spring flowers displayed included roses, lilies of the valley, iris and peonias. First place arrangements were won by Mrs. Marjie Brown, Mrs. O. P. Wilcox and Mrs. Opal McCowan.

Twelve members of Garden Club No. 8 met with Mrs. Earl Thomas, Route 4, Friday where a report on the recent state convention was given by Mrs. Cecil Bohon and Mrs. George Dryden.

Mrs. Walter Barnes told of the "Yard of the Month" program which is being sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce and the Sedalia Council of Garden Clubs.

Mrs. Gordon Voight gave a talk on "litter" and Mrs. George Dryden spoke on conservation.

Don't use a baking pan on top of the range because it might warp when placed on a hot gas burner or electric unit.

Several Topics Discussed

A variety of topics was discussed at the Thursday meeting of Beta Tau chapter of Beta Sigma Phi where Mrs. Betty Wise gave a program on literature; Mrs. Mary Bolling showed a film on health; Mrs. Kathy Hopper and Mrs. Betty Stelges presented a film on nature; and Mrs. Shirley Martin gave a program on travel.

A collection was taken to buy a floral bouquet that was sent to Buena Vista Home for Mother's Day and National Music Week was observed by all members joining in a sing-along.

Mrs. Carl Zimmerschied told about the Muscular Dystrophy drive that will take place May 20 and reminded members to help find walkers for the event.

Mrs. Kathy Cole presided at the meeting and Mrs. Bob Privitt was hostess.

Color Art

Color plays an important part in the art of make-up. Dark foundations, for instance, give an aged look. So to keep that youthful glow, use a light pinkish foundation and blusher and a white frosted powder along the hairline to lift the entire face.

Discuss Club Needs

A check for $102.77, representing proceeds from the fall premiere showing of "Nicholas and Alexandra" sponsored by Mu Iota chapter of Beta Sigma Phi, was presented Monday to Sedalia Boys Club Director Carnell Jones, left, by sorority service chairman

Mrs. Alan Diehl. Talking with them about possible uses for the money is Boys Club board member Morris Byrum. It has been decided that the money will be used to purchase equipment such as tables and chairs. (Democrat-Capitol Photo)

Polly's Pointers

Problem-Pointer Penned by Pollyfan

By POLLY CRAMER

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — There were bugs' eggs and bugs, too, in several of my tightly closed spice boxes. I discarded the infected spices but would like to know if there is anything I can do to prevent those little pests from taking over again? Often we are at a complete loss over what to buy a friend for a gift. My mother once told me always to keep track of any hobbies or special interests of friends and I find this to be invaluable information when gift buying. A kit would be nice for the woman who likes to embroider or a length of fabric for the one who likes to sew. Everybody has some sort of hobby or collection. It may be gardening, cooking, etc., so with a little thought it is very easy to please. I have used this method for years and always received happy smiles of appreciation. I recently received such a hobby gift in the form of a subscription to a decorating and crafts magazine and was overjoyed. — EDITH

Famed Hollywood Home Will Be Open for Tours

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Beginning May 25, the public will be able to see a $2 million relic of the elegant era when movie stars lived like movie stars.

The grandest of all the Hollywood mansions — Harold Lloyd's — is now undergoing preview tours and next month will be open to the general public via group visits by bus.

The visitors will see luxury that none of today's film personalities can afford. For instance:

A Versailles-like formal garden with doll houses that are completely livable.

A huge living room with built-in pipe organ.

Two 1924 Rolls-Royces and a 1935 Packard.

A hanging staircase of oak, reputedly the only one in Southern California.

Centuries-old rugs and tapestries, including a Flemish wall-hanging that was the gift of Mary Pickford — "because I can't stand that bare wall."

The most popular attraction is likely to be the Lloyd Christmas tree. The comedian spent weeks hanging the huge indoor tree with hundreds of hand-crafted ornaments gathered from around the world.

The shy, bespectacled Lloyd died of cancer two years ago, a month short of his 78th birthday. His will left the house and 18 acres to a nonprofit foundation with the design that the place be opened to the public.

That wasn't easy. The Lloyd estate is nestled in some of America's highest-priced residential property, and some of the neighbors were understandably concerned about having a tourist attraction next door.

"Only about 10 of the neighbors complained," reported Suzanne Lloyd Guasti, granddaughter of Lloyd and one of the five foundation trustees. "Sixty-five of the neighbors okayed the plan to have public tours. But because of the objections, we had to limit the tours to visitors who will be brought in by Gray Line buses."

Lloyd built the estate at the height of his silent-screen fame, starting in August 1926 and finishing three years and $2 million later. Not even the legendary Pickford of Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks could match its grandeur.

'Council' Controls Heroin

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Globe-Democrat said in a copyrighted story in Tuesday's editions that it had learned that the estimated $18 million heroin business in St. Louis is controlled by a ten-man "council."

The Globe said the council, which has been under investigation by authorities for several months, meets regularly in a north St. Louis tavern to set prices, settle territorial disputes, control the supply of heroin and—in some cases—to vote on death penalties for persons suspected of violating council rules.

The newspaper said authorities told it that free-lance drug sellers were permitted to operate in the city as long as they did not grow too large and refuse to submit to the wishes of the council. A death penalty was usually imposed on offenders, the paper said.

The council, the Globe said, is divided into territories and has a chairman and an "enforcer." The chairman was reported to supervise large shipments of heroin into the area and act as liaison to law officials in behalf of the council.

FFA Program Is Explained To Rotarians

Four Green Ridge High School Seniors, all members of Future Farmers of America and enrolled in the school's vocational agriculture program, presented a program on the history, activities and goals of the FFA organization to members of the Rotary Club at noon Monday at Bothwell Hotel.

Their vocational agriculture instructor, Rudy Davidson, was unable to accompany the young men and to introduce them as planned, so the boys took over. David Upton, president of the Green Ridge FFA chapter, led off with an historical background of the organization and a report of the state FFA convention held in April in Columbia.

Upton introduced Ronnie Kreisel who gave a report on the six-week FFA leadership summer camp conducted annually at Kaiser State Park.

At the conclusion of his remarks, Kreisel presented William Reed, who gave a report on the history and purpose of livestock shows and the knowledge gained by the young men who attended and participated.

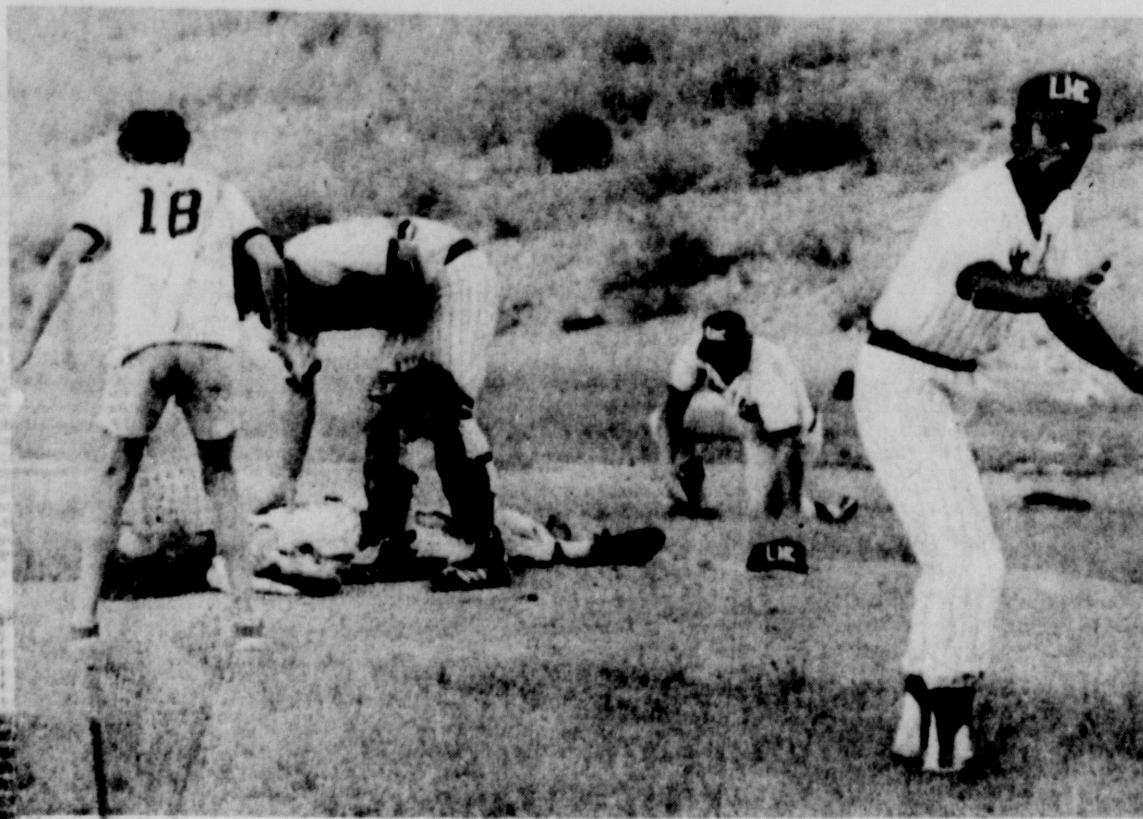

Reed introduced Jay Purchase who reported on the state FFA contests in nine agricultural classifications. The Green Ridge chapter sent five teams of three members each, plus one alternate for each team, to the competition this year and three members were named as State Farmer as a result of their showing, it was reported.

The program was sponsored by the club's rural-urban committee, Merle Vaughan, chairman, and was introduced by Dwight Knief, program chairman.

Ed Kehde, chairman of ticket sales for the Sedalia Chamber of Commerce-sponsored showing of the Carson-Barnes Circus on May 23, was presented by Charles Hofheins, club president. Kehde urged all Rotarians to support and attend the circus showing on the Missouri State Fair Grounds.

He explained the Chamber is undertaking the sponsorship to generate needed operational funds.

Jerry Seim, a member of the Culpepper, Va., Rotary Club was a guest of the meeting. He was introduced by Jess Walthall.

Lightning Victim

Five players were injured and pitcher John Wade, 19, was killed Sunday when a lightning bolt struck Wade as he prepared to pitch for a newly formed semipro baseball team at Lake Havasu City, Ariz. Catcher Fred Grover, who was slightly injured, attempts to aid Wade, who received a direct hit by the lightning bolt. The shortstop picks himself from the ground as another player calls for help. Wade's parents witnessed the tragedy from the bleachers.

North Atlantic Fishermen Say Livelihood Depleted

GLOUCESTER, Mass. (AP) — American fishermen who live off the waters of the North Atlantic say their livelihood may be dead within a few years, the victim of foreign competition.

Haddock, the lifeblood of Boston fishermen, have been all but wiped out by foreign fleets which fish outside the 12-mile international limit. And many other commercial species, including flounder, perch and herring, have been dangerously depleted in the once-rich waters stretching from Cape Hatteras, S.C. to Maine.

Unless the federal government persuades foreigners to take less fish or seizes control of the fishing off its shores, industry people say commercial fishing will cease in the North Atlantic, possibly within three years.

"The foreign fleets are rapping our waters," says Jack Donegan, president of a local of the Seafood Workers Union.

"If we don't move by next year, three years from now we're going to be kissing the industry good-bye," Donegan said. "Everyone is saying the same thing — management, labor, scientists and government. We're all in the same boat."

"It's inevitable," said Commissioner Frank Grice of the Massachusetts Division of Marine Fisheries. He predicted that other species will follow the way haddock are headed and become commercially extinct.

"It only takes a couple of years of really concentrated effort to do the job," Grice said.

Solutions advanced by state officials and industry spokesmen center on having the federal government extend the international boundary to 200 miles from the coast. If the government won't do that, the local officials want to see at least an American takeover of the supervision and control of North Atlantic fishing.

Neither proposal is likely to win much support in Washington where officials point to the obvious diplomatic problems such actions would create.

"We anticipate problems with any fishing stock out there—anything that's abundant enough to be economically feasible," Grice said. "They will eventually be exploited."

American fishermen are bitter and blunt about seeing foreigners take over coastal waters that 15 years ago were theirs alone.

Congress should have declared control of the East Coast fishing banks 10 years ago, said Tom Powers, mate of the Mary and Joseph, a fishing boat out of Boston. "Fishing is just about done here," said Powers, a 43-year veteran of the seas. "Uncle Sam has tried to be Santa Claus for the world."

Last month, 312 foreign vessels, 190 of them Soviet, plied the North Atlantic coast, the National Marine Fisheries Service reports.

The foreign ships fly the flags of about 17 nations. While Americans fish with small trawlers which are no more than 130 feet long, the government-supported Europeans work with fleets of large trawlers that feed their catches to 600-foot factory ships.

"It isn't going to be a very nice situation (for Americans) as long as they are fishing like that," said Russell T. Norris, regional director of the fisheries service. "It's not a bright future."

David was safe by three feet. But his father was out a week's vacation.

When David rounded third, he knew he could beat the throw. But, he didn't bank on his spikes tangling in the grass and breaking his leg.

Neither did his father.

The price to repair David's compound fracture cost dad that long awaited week in the Ozarks.

It's a fact that health care bills are up. It's also a fact that, sooner or later, most all of us will have to face paying them.

That's where Blue Cross and Blue Shield come in. We're the ones who help take care of the medical expenses for one-third of the people in this whole country. These people like the idea of pre-paying hospital and doctor bills through Blue Cross and Blue Shield. Because when it's needed, they know we'll be right there with a checkbook in hand.

If you like the idea, fill out the coupon below. Or call Blue Cross and Blue Shield. It's the safest move you can make.

Japanese working on 'telephone gap'

In addition to all their other problems, Japanese and American businessmen are separated by a "telephone gap."

It's more than a matter of language differences, or the fact that Americans say "Hello" and the Japanese say something like Moshe Dayan's first name repeated twice in rapid succession.

The Japanese prefer to conduct their important business matters on a face-to-face basis and use the telephone merely for handling minor details.

Americans, on the other hand, routinely make major deals over the phone and confirm their verbal agreements in writing later.

Now, however, the gap is being closed, at least from one side. Japanese businessmen in Honolulu are attending a new international management school to learn how to use the telephone in the American way so that they can deal more effectively with their counterparts in the United States.

The instruction is being given by the Hawaiian Telephone Co. as part of a five-month course conducted by the Japan-American Institute of Management Science, established last year by a large Japanese manufacturer of computers and communications equipment.

Japanese businessmen have been doing all right as it is, "telephone gap" or no. Wait until they learn how to wield the instrument with the verve of a Lyndon B. Johnson or Martha Mitchell. (NEA)

Nixon not cut in on bugging plans

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — The question hangs heavily over the Watergate horror. How deeply is President Nixon implicated in the crimes of his subordinates?

The answer is known, of course, only to a few White House insiders who are disposed to protect the President. Nevertheless, we have sought them out and have asked hard questions.

Those privy to the oval office recall that the President was totally absorbed with foreign affairs during the Watergate gestation. He has a strong sense of presidential priorities, they say. He doesn't like to be distracted by minor matters when he is concentrating on a major problem.

While G. Gordon Liddy was plotting the Watergate break-in and bugging in Attorney General John Mitchell's offices in early February 1972, the President was preparing for his Peking trip. He returned home on Feb. 28.

Two days later, the North Vietnamese struck with their surprise spring offensive. The President was wholly occupied with the military crisis in Vietnam throughout April while the Waterbuggers were recruited and equipped.

On May 8, he mined Haiphong harbor, an act which he feared might cause the cancellation of his Moscow visit. This crowded out all other problems, aides recall, as he awaited the Kremlin's reaction and prepared for the summit meeting. He arrived in Moscow on May 22 as the Waterbuggers were reconnoitering the Democratic layout in preparation for the first break-in.

Throughout this period, say aides, subordinates didn't bother him about politics. He usually holed up with his Vietnam-China-Russia paperwork in one of his hideouts. An occasional political poll, memo or clipping would reach his desk, they remember. Usually, it would come back with a scribbled "H," referring it to staff chief H. R. Haldeman. Some were marked both "H" and "C," which meant it should also be called to the attention of troubleshooter Charles Colson.

Everyone who had access to the President remembers he was angry and surprised by news of the Watergate arrest on June 17. He exploded with expletives, they recall. The kindest word he had for those responsible was "idiots!"

He immediately assigned counsel John Dean, then a presidential favorite, to find out whether anyone in the White House was involved. Aides who heard the President discuss this assignment swear he wanted Dean to make sure the White House was clean, not to obstruct the investigation.

The President was more suspicious but less concerned about the campaign committee across the street at 1701 Pennsylvania Avenue. "It was assumed around the White House," recalls one insider, "that Watergate was strictly a Keystone Kops, 1701 type operation."

The suspicion centered on Jeb Stuart Magruder, the deputy campaign director. Two months before the election, John Ehrlichman urged that Magruder be fingered as the campaign official who authorized the Waterbugging. The decision not to throw Magruder to the wolves, says one source, had the President's approval.

Congressional sources also say that L. Patrick Gray, as acting FBI director, warned the President as early as July 6 that the men around him were misusing both the FBI and CIA. "You are being mortally wounded by the men around you," Gray is quoted as telling the President.

Richard Nixon places a high premium on loyalty, which he believes in giving as well as receiving. The men around him, indeed, were selected more for their loyalty than their ability.

It simply didn't occur to the President, in the opinion of those who know him, that such trusted aides as Haldeman and Ehrlichman would deceive him.

Of course, no one knows what Haldeman or Ehrlichman may have told the President in private. But there was never any hint around the White House, say our sources, that Nixon had any inkling of the payoffs to defendants to keep their mouths shut, the destruction of incriminating evidence and the obstruction of justice.

Certainly, he wanted to control the Watergate investigation and keep it from becoming a major embarrassment. He may even have congratulated Dean for helping to soften the blow, although a search of his meticulous records doesn't show the Sept. 17 visit when Dean reportedly claimed the President told him: "God job, John. (Bob (Haldeman) told me what a great job you've done."

But our sources are convinced that Dean, Mitchell, Ehrlichman and Haldeman concealed from the President their alleged involvement in the illegal cover-up.

Despite his grim, brooding nature, Nixon also has a gentle, compassionate Quaker side. One aide told us that after his name appeared briefly in the Watergate headlines, the President called him in not to demand an explanation but to console him. For an hour, Nixon told about the rough times he had been through and urged his assistant to relax and not let the notoriety get him down.

It is painful for the President to fire anyone, least of all a close associate. He went through several sleepless nights, say aides, before he could bring himself to oust Haldeman and Ehrlichman. After the confrontation, they heard, the emotion welled up in his eyes.

The President's involvement in the spying-sabotage operation, however, was less innocent. We'll report on this in a future column.

Art Buchwald Brezhnev view on bugging

WASHINGTON — Communist Party Chief Leonid Brezhnev met with Henry Kissinger last week at the Soviet leader's home outside of Moscow. The conversation naturally got around to the Watergate and this, in essence, is what was said.

"Gospodin Kissinger, I do not understand all this business about Watergate that is taking place in your country."

Buchwald

"Well, Mr. Brezhnev, it's rather difficult to explain. It appears that members of the President's political party bugged the headquarters of the opposition party."

"What's wrong with that, Gospodin Kissinger? We do it all the time."

"But you have no opposition party."

"That's true. So we bug our OWN party. You never can tell when our members are up to no good."

"In any case, Mr. Brezhnev, seven men were caught and tried for the crime. One of them confessed that higher members of the President's political party were involved."

"What is wrong with higher members of the President's party finding out what the revisionist counterrevolutionaries are up to?"

"That's the way our people felt about it, too. But unfortunately some newspapermen got wind of the story and started to write about it."

"Why didn't the President put the newspapermen in insane asylums?"

"We cannot do that in the United States, Mr. Brezhnev."

"That's too bad. You cannot have order and discipline in a country if you are unable to put writers in mental institutions."

"That's true. The real problem though was that after the Watergate trial, it was revealed that members of the White House staff tried to obstruct justice and keep any higher-ups from being implicated."

"Naturally, Gospodin Kissinger. What other choice would they have?"

"In our country the people want to get to the bottom of things. They want to know who is responsible for a crime."

"Even if the President is involved?"

"Yessir, even if the President is involved."

"Why didn't President Nixon shoot everyone who had anything to do with Watergate, so that nobody would talk?"

"Some of the people involved were his best friends."

"In the Soviet Union, a leader has NO friends. He must do what's right for the people even if it means losing a few bureaucrats."

"We're aware you do have a different system, Mr. Brezhnev, but we must deal with the Constitution. The President has to take responsibility for what his subordinates do, no matter how serious the crime."

"What kind of system of justice is that? The President should torture his subordinates until they confess he had nothing to do with it."

"We've thought of that, but it just wouldn't work in the United States because Congress would get wind of it and raise a storm."

"Why doesn't the President get the Army to arrest Congress?"

"We can't do it, Mr. Brezhnev. The people would never stand for it."

"In our country WE'RE the people. And we arrest anybody we want to."

"I know, Mr. Brezhnev, I know. Now get back to your meeting with President Nixon in June..."

"I'm not sure I want to meet with a world leader who doesn't know how to bug his enemies without getting caught."

Expelled reporter was a lucky man

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

WASHINGTON — Off and on for the past several weeks, hearts have been bleeding profusely for Peter Joseph Niesewand, lately expelled from Rhodesia. My own contrary feeling is that the gentleman got off lucky, and that he might survive a few prayers of thanks for the survival of British jurisprudence.

Niesewand is a 28-year-old journalist, born in South Africa and later naturalized as a citizen of Rhodesia. As a correspondent for a number of publications, he last November prepared three articles purporting, in part, to disclose Rhodesia's plans for combatting terrorist raids. He was thereupon arrested and prosecuted under the country's Official Secrets Act, which makes it a felony for any person to publish information "which is calculated to be, or which might or is intended to be useful, directly, or indirectly, to an enemy."

On April 6, a hearing magistrate found him guilty and sentenced him to two years at hard labor, one year of the sentence suspended. The maximum penalty, incidentally, would have been 25 years.

When word of this sentence reached the tender ears of our own Eastern press, a chorus of denunciation broke out. You might have supposed, reading these accounts, that Niesewand was the innocent victim of fascist wolves, vengefully eager to rend him limb from limb.

It may be useful to keep in mind what happened next. Niesewand, of course, had been represented by counsel. He had had the benefit of witnesses in his own behalf. He had every protection known to due process of law. On appeal, his case was reviewed by the High Court of Rhodesia, headed by a highly respected veteran jurist, Chief Justice Hugh Beadle.

On May 1, the High Court reversed his conviction, and set aside the verdict and sentence. Beadle's opinion is in the classic tradition of British jurisprudence: It is cogent, soundly reasoned, supported by British precedents, and it is less than nine pages long. Judges Hector MacDonald and Benjamin Goldin concurred.

It is plain from the opinion, however, that the appellate court took a coldly serious view of young Niesewand's journalistic enterprise. His articles left a clear impression that they originated in an official leak. The information purported to come from authoritative military sources. He was writing about top secret stuff — about the capacity of Rhodesian forces to defend the country against terrorism.

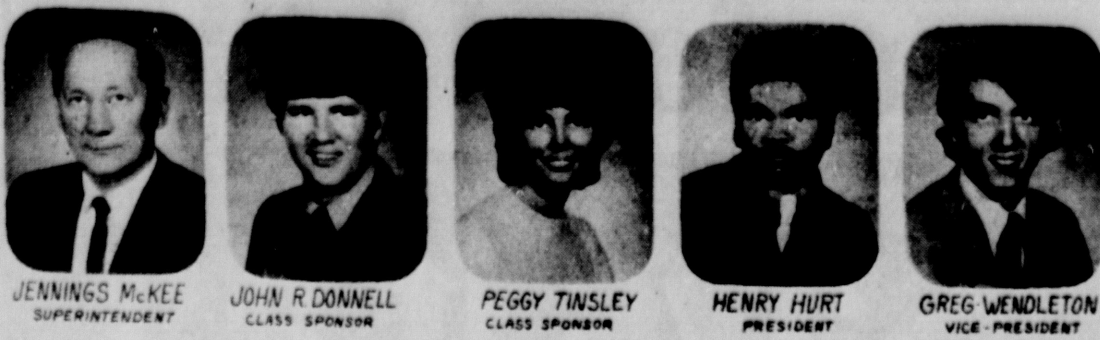

No, terrorism is no laughing matter in Rhodesia today. The custom among weep-easy Protestant churchmen is to regard the guerrillas as noble and virtuous "freedom fighters," seeking to liberate their captive brothers. This is burbling nonsense.

The two principal groups of terrorists now operating in the wild northeast country are known as ZAPU (Zimbabwe African People's Union) and ZANU (Zimbabwe African National Union). ZAPU is composed chiefly of the Matabele tribe; its terrorist leaders are the Maseko-oriented. ZANU operates through Mashona leadership; it is oriented toward Peking. Both outfits are well-armed with Communist weapons; and they are vicious. In terrorizing native compounds, they rely on mutilation — with a few revolting African refinements.

If the bleeding-hearts and weep-easies have their way, Rhodesia will fall to one or the other of the terrorist bands. It is interesting to speculate on what would then become of a system of ordered justice dating at least from Magna Carta. It is useful to contemplate the freedom of the press that thereafter would survive.

Niesewand and his survivor family have departed for England. He himself will be permitted to return to Rhodesia, if he wishes, for a two-week visit each year. A condition of his expulsion is that he write nothing more about Rhodesia's military forces. The charge against him, as Chief Justice Beadle coolly observed, boiled down to "spying for the enemy." He was narrowly found not guilty, on a careful scrutiny of the evidence supporting his "purpose" in publishing the articles. Let him thank his lucky stars for an easy exit. If ZANU and ZAPU triumph, those stars will not shine on Rhodesia again.

Manual Space Repair Termed Too Dangerous

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — If an astronaut tried a space walk to repair the problem that has delayed the first Skylab mission, it would be like a mouse trying to trip a trap to get some cheese.

A mighty Saturn 5 rocket was thundering past 40,000 feet at 1,000 miles an hour Monday when an aluminum micro-meteorite shield was ripped from the side of the spacecraft, officials at the Kennedy Space Center said.

This apparently jammed two solar power panels, so they failed to open fully when ordered to unfold from their accordion storage position, the officials said.

The panels were to have converted solar energy to electrical energy to power many of the experiments astronauts Charles Conrad Jr., Paul J. Weitz and Dr. Joseph P. Kerwin much support in Washington planned 28-day mission.

The astronauts were to blast into orbit and board Skylab Tuesday, but the National Aeronautics and Space Administration announced Monday night that the manned launch had been postponed until Sunday. Many people wondered why an astronaut just couldn't step into space and free the solar panels manually.

NASA officials replied that the crew hadn't been trained for such a space walk, the umbilical cord that carries their oxygen and power wouldn't reach the panels comfortably and there was danger that sharp metal from the torn cover could slice through a space suit.

And a NASA engineer explained that each of the one-ton panels is actuated by explosive devices "and we don't want them messing around in a situation that hazardous."

He said that any attempt to free the panels could cause them to flip open violently. An astronaut caught in the way could find himself in the same position as the mouse too slow in dodging the trap.

At a news conference, NASA spokesmen were asked if the crew could use the Apollo space craft to bump the panels loose. One spokesman replied dryly: "About the only thing you could use would be the docking probe, and that wouldn't be too practical since you'll need that for docking."

Report Is Termed

'Total Fabrication'

WASHINGTON (AP) — A newspaper report that President Nixon may have used 1968 campaign funds to buy his California estate has been denounced by the White House as "a total fabrication."

"It is a totally false and malicious report," said press secretary Ronald Zeigler Monday of the Santa Ana, Calif., Register story.

The newspaper quoted unnamed investigators for the Senate Watergate committee as saying they believed Nixon may have used $1 million in unreported funds left over from his 1968 presidential campaign to purchase the estate at San Clemente.

BUILDINGS BLOWN DOWN

LONDON (AP) — More than 800,000 buildings in Britain suffered from wind damage between 1962 and 1969, a building research survey shows. Most of the 56 million pounds spent on repair and replacement could have been saved, however, if wind safety standards introduced in 1970 had come into effect earlier, the report stressed.

Will Operate With A Temporary Policy

The Sedalia Housing Authority Monday night voted to operate under a temporary personnel policy drawn up by the Rev. Marvin Albright, director, until its June meeting.

Youth Competent To Stand Trial

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) — A 16-year-old youth charged in connection with an April 28 apartment fire that killed six elderly women, has been ruled mentally competent to stand trial.

Judge Dean Smith of the Wyandotte County juvenile court said the boy would be tried in an adjudication hearing Tuesday.

The boy and Jimmy Louis Massey, 18, also of Kansas City, Kan., are charged with arson and the deaths of the six women.

Judge Smith earlier denied a request by Nick A. Tomasic, Wyandotte County district attorney, that the boy be certified to stand trial as an adult.

when it will take final action. The delay in approving the policy was to allow authority member Clyde Robinson an opportunity to review changes and revisions made in Mr. Albright's original draft of the policy. Robinson was not present for Monday's session.

The policy sets guidelines for hiring practices, sick leave and compensation for employees of the Housing Authority. Mr. Albright operated under a personnel policy which was "kind of a standard form" from the Department of Housing and Urban Development. He said the new policy is based on one used by the Columbia Housing Authority and the city of Sedalia's personnel practices. He said the policy reviewed by the authority Monday, "is an update to fit our purposes more."

The only areas of concern among authority members were annual leave and holidays. The authority favored granting 10 days annual leave for employees who had served one year with five days of annual leave added after five years. Employees birthdays were deleted from the list of holidays in the original draft, leaving seven holidays including Christmas, New Year's Day, Memorial Day, Independence Day, Labor Day, Veterans Day and Thanksgiving Day.

Under other provisions of the policy, the authority will establish pay scales for employees based on rates for city employees. The director will have authority to set an employee's wage within these limits. All employees will start their employment at the lowest end of the pay scale, according to the policy, unless the director feels their experience merits a higher starting salary.

Applicants for employment will be judged on the basis of previous experience, and-or written and oral examinations. Promotions will be made by the director with the approval of the board. The same procedure will be followed with demotions and transfers.

Suspensions will be made by the director. However, the chairman of the authority is required to review all suspensions. Following his investigation, the chairman may concur with the director's action, reinstate the suspended employee or dismiss him.

House That Tony Rebuilt

Hulman Rekindles Interest in Indianapolis

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The Indianapolis 500-mile auto race will run the 57th time May 28 with another colorful show drawing more than 250,000 persons and heard and seen by millions more around the world.

But it hasn't always been so. In 1945, when Anton "Tony" Hulman of Terre Haute, Ind., bought the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, it was in disrepair. Interest in the Memorial Day classic had diminished after the track was closed four years during World War II.

The Speedway, which was built in 1909 as a proving ground for automobiles, is now known in some racing circles as "the house that Tony rebuilt."

The 2½-mile asphalt track is the focal point of the Speedway on the city's far west side, but it isn't the only attraction of the 539-acre property.

Hulman has replaced the ancient wooden grandstand that nearly circled the track with steel and concrete grandstands. There is now an estimated seating capacity of 235,000 and room for an additional 100,000 persons in the track infield.

Hulman has supervised construction of a more-than-100-room motel, a 27-hole golf course with nine holes in the infield and an office-museum building as well as press and hospitality quarters.

Speedway officials never announced attendance figures, but an estimated 60,000 persons watched the 500 in 1946 and prize money totaled $75,000 after a prewar high of $96,250.

Hulman, whose great wealth comes from varied business and real estate interests, has made the Indy race the richest in the world of auto racing.

For the third straight year prize money this year will total more than $1 million.

His newest improvement at the Speedway is an addition to the motel to house VIP suites which rent for $10,000 a year on the second floor and $20,000 for the third floor. There are six suites on each floor. The rooms, which overlook the track, were all rented long before the addition was completed, most of them by large companies involved in racing.

For race day, tickets for reserved seats sell for from $10 to $40, and it costs $5 a person to watch the race from the infield in the midst of one of the world's largest picnics.

Gasoline Alley, the strip of concrete that connects the garage area with the pits, provides one of the few places in major sports where fans can mingle with their heroes. In fact, drivers, owners and mechanics often have to push their way through the crowd, signing autographs and talking with excited people.

The museum of 500 and Speedway relics is free and open year-round. There is even the opportunity to ride around the track in a Speedway bus for 50 cents, except in May.

But it's the race cars, the speeds and personalities that draw most people here. Racing has changed tremendously since the first Indy 500 in 1911.

Ray Harroun won the first race in a Marmon Wasp at an average speed of 74.59 miles an hour.

Mark Donahue, last year's winner, averaged a record 162.962 m.p.h. in a winged McLaren-Offenhauser.

California Gets By in 10

Tom McCraw Breaks Up 2-2 Deadlock for Angels

KANSAS CITY (AP) — "I know how to get myself ready," Tom McCraw explained after his pinch-hit single drove in Jim Spencer in the 10th inning to give the California Angels a 3-2 victory over the Kansas City Royals Monday night.

"You have to stay in the ballgame and keep your blood flowing," said the 32-year old veteran. "I learned that from Smokey Burgess." McCraw said, explaining he and the pinch-hitter par excellence played together with the Chicago White Sox in 1967.

May Sold to Mets

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Kansas City Royals catcher Jerry May was sold Monday to the New York Mets.

The Royals made no announcement as to immediate plans to fill the vacancy.

May appeared in 11 games for the Royals this season, batting .133 with four hits in 30 attempts. Most of the Kansas City catching has been done by Carl Taylor and Fran Healy.

Mets catcher Jerry Grote suffered a broken arm in weekend action against the Pirates.

The game-winning hit is "the job I'm to do," he said. "I've had fairly good luck with (Dick) Drago." Drago went the distance, scattering seven hits in leveling his record at 3-3 in a losing cause.

"I knew what he was trying to do," McCraw said of Drago. "I knew he was going to pitch away." With two out in the top of the tenth, the left-handed hitting McCraw, at bat for Jeff Torborg, stroked a single to left to drive in Spencer.

Bill Singer, 6-1, who, as Drago, went the distance, stopped the Royals in the bottom of the tenth. Singer struck out 11 in the game to boost his season total to 70.

Frank Robinson started the Angel scoring with a two-run homer in the fourth. It was a "slow curve or slider," said Robinson whose drive made him the only player to hit homers in 31 major league ballparks. "That's a record," he said.

Kansas City had scored in the third when John Mayberry singled in Steve Hovley with two out. The Royals tied it in the fourth when Singer "hung a slider" to Lou Piniella, who slammed his second homer of the season.

"When I saw it, I had a nightmare," Singer said.

After Piniella's shot, the teams and the pitchers battled on even terms until McCraw "got his blood flowing."

Drago said, "I just made a bad pitch and he hit it out. He gets paid to hit them."

Tonight California is to start Nolan Ryan, 4-3, against Bruce Dal Canton, 2-1, for the Royals

Dodgers Activate Outfielder Joshus

Dodgers Activate Outfielder Joshus

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Outfielder Von Joshus, injured April 16 when he was struck by a pitch, was reactivated Monday by the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Joshus, batting .333 when the pitch broke a bone in his left wrist, joined the Dodgers in Cincinnati, where they open a three-game series today against the Reds.

Miss Evert completely dominated the United States Lawn Tennis Association women's tour this spring with the advantage of playing on friendly Florida clay courts in half of the eight tournaments.

"It would certainly be a challenge," said Miss Evert, admitting that thoughts of how she would do against Riggs occupied her mind while watching the telecast of the Riggs-Court match.

"I hope I could do better," she said. "I don't know why not. The pressure was on Mrs. Court. If I play, the pressure will all be on him."

Duffy Daugherty:

From the Sidelines To the Press Box

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Unless something totally unexpected happens, the nation is in for a treat this fall. Duffy Daugherty will join the team of Chris Schenkel and Bud Wilkinson in telecasting the college football games.

Daugherty is a man who views dullness as a cardinal sin, and considers taking oneself too seriously as another mortal transgression. Hopefully, he will say what is on his droll mind on television. The Cyclops, though, has a way of ferreting out the blandness in people, especially telecasters doing football.

Schenkel, for example, is a marvelous reporter if you only tune in to hear the good news. Wilkinson is one of this country's most revered soporifics.

There is hope that change can occur. The American Broadcasting Company did alter for the better the football viewing habits of America. Whether or not you like the patter and laughter on Monday night pro football, one must admit that it is not your usual football inanities. (Critics say, then, that it's your unusual football inanities).

Daugherty, former Michigan State football coach, says frankly that he is an admirer of both Howard Cosell and Don Meredith, the stars of the Monday night telecasting.

"Cosell humanizes the players," said Daugherty at breakfast recently in Manhattan. "He tells personal things about their backgrounds — this fellow is one of seven children in his family — that kind of thing."

Meredith, says Daugherty, is also entertaining. As the world so sourfully knows, Meredith will sometimes break into a down-home Texas song on the air. Daugherty, too, has been known to spin a tune.

One is from his high school days in Barnesboro, Pa., in the age when people were still doing most of their artwork on cave walls.

"Barnesboro, Barnesboro, B-A-R-N-E-S-B-O-R-O."

And the boys are the squarest. "His Irish tenor, admits Daugherty, is not necessarily his strong suit. Football and story-telling are. Both of which he hopes to impart on the telecasts. For example, he feels it will add something colorful to perhaps tell what coaches might be saying in the locker rooms at halftime.

He tells of when his Michigan State team played Notre Dame in 1956. The State players were in a trance, said Daugherty. They were under the spell of the famed Notre Dame Golden Dome. Former Notre Dame All-Americans, including the Four Horsemen, were at the game.

The legend was inundating. State couldn't do a thing right in the first half, and was lucky to be losing only 7-0.

Daugherty didn't know what to do. He was silent, as all were, in the halftime locker room. Finally, he asked the center, "What happened on that snap," which had resulted in a fumble. "I don't know; it was like a hand reached down and deflected the ball," said the center.

"Don't bring religion into this," said Daugherty. "The Good Lord has more important things to do."

"Well, coach, then maybe the hand reached up."

The team broke up, the strange mood was reversed and State went out and won 47-17.

Daugherty's wit should add necessary fuel to the telecasts. After the awful 1967 season, for example, the team's record was 3-7. Daugherty explained: "We won three games, lost none and were upset in seven."

At the start of one season, a reporter asked whom Daugherty was happiest to see returning this year. "Me," he replied.

Daugherty, 58 years old, will not return this season. The Michigan State team had only mediocre records the previous six seasons, after being tops in the nation the two years before.

Pasture, unfortunately, is where old coaches with nondescript records are herded. Daugherty was given a job as a kind of glorified fund raiser. His interests, however, remain with football, and he gives clinics with Bud Wilkinson in the spring. He is enthusiastic about the telecasting job.

His daughter, Dree, a Stanford freshman, hopes for something else. When she heard he would not return as football coach, she wrote him a letter. "There is so much more to life than just being a football coach," she wrote. "I know you now have the time — and the soul — to find it out."

"But I want you to know that I learned more from being the daughter of a football coach than I have anywhere else. I learned the value of a smile, and I was taught how to bounce back."

one they could come up with," said Riggs by telephone from San Diego. He has already expressed a desire to accept a challenge next from defending Wimbledon champion Billie Jean King.

"I don't know if I want her on clay," said Riggs of the advantage Miss Evert would have on playing on the clay surface on which she was weaned and

Four-Event Card

At Convention Hall

A "grudge match" featuring Bob Brown and veteran professional wrestler Ronnie Etchison highlights tonight's weekly grappling card on Convention Hall at Liberty Park.

A tag team match between the tandems of Black Angus-Omar Atlas and Bob Orton-Harley Race, is scheduled in the semifinal.

The special event will be a midjet match between Little Bruiser and the Haiti Kid, while the opener pits Orton against Black Angus.

Doors are scheduled to open at 6:45 p.m., with the first match getting underway at 8:30 p.m.

Promoter Seeks Riggs-Evert Match

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Bobby Riggs made a fuss about giving up 25 years to Margaret Court in their celebrated tennis match Sunday. He now has to ponder whether to give up 37 years and play Chris Evert.

Fort Lauderdale promoter George Liddy announced Monday he was willing to put up $30,000 for a confrontation between Riggs, 55, and Miss Evert, 18, here Sept. 22.

"The women's lib movement in tennis is working quickly to match me with someone who might be tougher than Mrs. Court," said Riggs.

He smashed Mrs. Court, the leading money winner on the women's Virginia Slims circuit, 6-2, 6-1.

"Chris would be the toughest one they could come up with," said Riggs by telephone from San Diego. He has already expressed a desire to accept a challenge next from defending Wimbledon champion Billie Jean King.

"I don't know if I want her on clay," said Riggs of the advantage Miss Evert would have on playing on the clay surface on which she was weaned and has been unbeatable.

Miss Evert completely dominated the United States Lawn Tennis Association women's tour this spring with the advantage of playing on friendly Florida clay courts in half of the eight tournaments.

"It would certainly be a challenge," said Miss Evert, admit-

It All Started Here

California's Sandy Alomar (24) slides back into second base as Kansas City second baseman Cookie Rojas waits with the ball in his glove to put the tag on him. Alomar was called safe by umpire John Rice on the fourth-inning pick-off play, and when Rojas objected to the call, he was ejected from the game. Pitcher Dick Drago, who was charged with the 3-2, 10-inning loss, made the pick-off attempt. (UPI)

S-C Girls Down Kewps for Second Time

The Smith-Cotton girls track team closed out its abbreviated 1973 schedule Monday in Liberty Park Stadium, chalking up their second victory in three meets.

Two records fell as S-C downed Columbia Hickman in dual action, 74-34, which marks the second time in as many meetings that the Kewpies have been defeated by Smith-Cotton.

Senior high jumper Joy Herndon cleared the bar at 4-9 to establish a record. That was three inches higher than her previous record set in the first dual with Hickman.

The 880-yard relay team, made up of Donna Simms, Bridgette Broadus, Linda Klover and Sammie Anderson, clipped more than two seconds off the record of 2:02.2, running the distance in 2:00.0.

In all, Smith-Cotton captured nine firsts in the 13-event meet. The Tigers' junior varsity also won, 52-47.

Open Bible, Flat Creek, New Hope Win Openers

Open Bible, New Hope and Flat Creek posted first-round wins in the Harmony Baptist Association's Pre-Season Softball Tournament Monday in Housel Park.

Open Bible drubbed Camp Branch, 20-10, with the victory being chalked up by Ray Douthitt. Dan Ikerd took the loss.

New Hope jumped on Smithton, which fielded only six players, 16-0. The win was credited to John Houston; the loss went to Griffy Tolliver.

In the night's tightest contest, Flat Creek edged First Sedalia.

6-3, to advance to the quarterfinals of the double-elimination tourney. Bill Boatman was the winning hurler. Clay Young was the loser.

Only one more first-round game is left on the schedule, that is set for 6:30 p.m. tonight, with Maplewood meeting Syracuse.

The 6 p.m. game is a quarterfinal match-up between Calvary and Nazarene, both of which are byes in the opening round. Flat Creek will meet East Sedalia at 9:30 p.m. in another quarterfinal game. East Sedalia drew a bye in the first round.

Chiefs Ink Holmes, Three Draft Picks

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Kansas City Chiefs have signed Pat Holmes, former Houston Oilers, as a free agent.

The Chiefs also announced Monday the signing of three of their 1973 draft choices.

Holmes, a 6-5, 250-pound defensive end, was a regular for the Oilers for seven seasons. He was signed by the Oilers in 1966 after four seasons with Calgary of the Canadian League, and was released by Houston in March.

Also signed by the Chiefs were 10th round draft choice Willie Osley, a cornerback from the University of Illinois; 13th round pick Paul Mettalo, a quarterback from the University of Massachusetts; and 14th round choice Albert White, a wide receiver from Fort Valley State, Georgia.

Weiskopf Up to Eighth On PGA's Money List

NEW YORK (AP) — Tom Weiskopf improved his position on the Professional Golf Association's money-winning list 21 places by backing into the $30,000 first prize in the Colonial National Invitation Tournament.

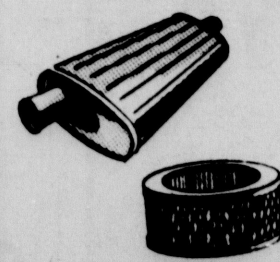

Weiskopf's one-shot victory, achieved as tournament front-runner Bruce Crampton took a double-bogey six on the final hole, raised his 1973 earnings to $64,722 from $34,722. Weiskopf, previously 29th in the cash rankings, now stands eighth.

Crampton, although failing in a bid for his fourth victory of the year, increased his lead over Jack Nicklaus in the money race to $21,487. He has won $167,551 on the year to $146,064 for the Golden Bear.

Lee Trevino holds down third spot on the list with $126,288, followed by Lanny Wadkins at $91,573. Chi Chi Rodriguez, $72,705; Bob Dickson, $68,679; Ron Funseth, $67,434; Weiskopf; Johnny Miller, $63,388; and Homero Blancas, $59,229.

Schmidt, Luzinski Fuel Phils

ST. LOUIS (AP) — It was as much a matter of hands as it was bats for a couple of latter day Philadelphia Phillies whiz kids Monday night.

Greg Luzinski and Mike Schmidt, lodged in brief slumps, changed their form and combined for six hits in a 10-5 romp past the St. Louis Cardinals.

"I've been jerking the ball too much," said Luzinski, whose alterations produced a triple, double and single.

For Schmidt, who endured an 0-for-7 day in a Sunday doubleheader against the Chicago Cubs, the secret to three singles was a change in grip.

"I haven't been able to pull the string," the 23-year-old rookie third baseman explained. "I made a change with my hands. At least it helped me mentally."

The 22-year-old Luzinski was batting .206 and Schmidt .214 prior to a 12-hit Phillies explosion rocking Cards starter Reggie Cleveland, 2-4, and three successors.

Luzinski started the fusillade with his triple for a 1-0 lead in the second, triggered a six-run uprising with a single two innings later and doubled home a run in the ninth.

Schmidt, whose infield roller first scored Luzinski, singled home the same runner in the fourth and added to a three-run salvo with a hit in the final inning.

"I think it's timing," said Schmidt, a Phillies spring training sensation set back by a dislocated shoulder. "It's a little too early to worry about a batting slump though."

"I like to think I can hit like Joe Torre," said Luzinski in reference to the Cards' first baseman, a former National League Most Valuable Player.

"I feel I can hit the ball to all fields when I'm going good. The trouble is I've been swinging with my body instead of using my hands."

Ken Brett, an American League castoff, checked the Cards on two singles until Willie Montanez' two-base error and three singles produced two St. Louis runs in the sixth.

Brett, 1-1, gave way to Mac Scarce in the eighth and the Cards closed to 7-5 before the Phillies surged a final time.

It went only as a forceout, but Manager Danny Ozark saw fleet Larry Bowa's speed in beating a double play relay as a Philadelphia key.

The Phils led 2-0 in the fourth when Bowa forced Bob Boone but beat the throw to first base to avoid a rally-killing third out.

"It's the intangibles that count in this game," said Ozark, "the things that sometimes aren't noticeable except to the manager."

Back in Time

Philadelphia's Mike Schmidt gets back ahead of Reggie Cleveland's pick-off attempt in the second inning of Monday night's National League match-up between St. Louis and the Phillies in St. Louis. Joe Torre gloves Cleveland's throw. Schmidt banged out three singles and teammate Greg Luzinski produced a triple, double and single as the two guided the Phils past the Cardinals, 10-5.

Pitchers Outshine 'Monster'

'Cha Cha' Breaks Up Scoreless Tie in 11th

Good pitching is supposed to defeat good hitting, except in Boston.

In Boston, there's a ballpark named Fenway with an inviting left-field wall, a scant 315 feet from the hungry batter, that is known to chew up baseballs and baseball axioms alike.

But Monday night, "The Monster" as the wall is less than affectionately known to moundsmen, kept its distance and the Red Sox and Orioles engaged in an old-fashioned pitchers' duel.

Baltimore's Doyle Alexander pitched 10 innings of four-hit, shutout ball and Boston's Bill Lee countered with five-hit, scoreless pitching over nine. But neither hurler was around when designated hitter Orlando Cepeda's single in the 11th scored rookie Mario Guerrero for the evening's only run and a 1-0 Boston victory.

In other American League action, Detroit shut out the New York Yankees 8-0, California outlasted Kansas City 3-2 in 10 innings, Minnesota needed 11 innings to defeat Texas 6-4 in the second game after dropping the opener 7-6, Oakland beat Chicago 5-1 and Cleveland edged Milwaukee 2-1.

Alexander, a young right-hander, and Lee, a veteran southpaw, matched zeroes through regulation, forcing the first scoreless extra-inning game in Boston in two years.

The scoreless duel over nine innings was even more surprising since both pitchers are normally relievers.

"It was unbelievable, just unbelievable," said Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver, "but I've learned to expect the unbelievable in this game."

At Milwaukee, Dick Tidrow hurled a three-hitter over eight innings, but needed relief help in the ninth from Tom Hilgendorf and Jerry Johnson to defeat the Brewers.

"A game like this when two guys come in and do a job can turn everything around," said Cleveland Manager Ken Aspromonte.

Oakland's Ken Holtzman, staked to an early lead on Reggie Jackson's first-inning, three-run homer, stopped the Chicago White Sox on four hits to record his seventh victory against two losses.

Joe Coleman raised his record to 7-2 as he tossed a six-hitter at the New York Yankees. Along the way, Coleman struck out eight while walking four.

Fairly Home Run Sinks Skidding Pirates, 3-2

Ron Fairly has a good memory—but then again, nights like Monday aren't all that hard to remember.

Fairly got only one hit in five times at bat against the Pirates, but it was the big one—a solo homer in the 10th inning that lifted the Montreal Expos to a 3-2 victory and sent Pittsburgh to its sixth consecutive loss.

"I think it was a fast ball," said Fairly of his game-winning shot off Nelson Briles, "but I'm not sure. All I know is, I hit it well."

"It's easy to remember the good days," observed Fairly, who had fond memories of Briles and the Pirates even before his blast.

He hit another tie-breaking homer off Briles in a game won by the Expos earlier this season. And back in 1965, while playing for the Los Angeles Dodgers, Fairly again beat the Pirates with a last-inning homer.

In other National League baseball games, Philadelphia whipped St. Louis 10-5, Atlanta topped Houston 7-1 and San Diego beat San Francisco, also by a 7-1 count.

The New York Mets' game against the Cubs in Chicago was postponed due to cold weather, and Los Angeles and Cincinnati were not scheduled.

The defeat was the 14th in the last 19 games for the Pirates, last year's NL East champions. And Briles, who suffered his fourth defeat in five decisions, feels its the pitchers who must pull the club out of its rut.

"When you're not getting anything going, you're pitching has to pick you up. It's up to us."

Atlanta's Mike Lum had a three-run double and a solo homer in the Braves' victory.

"It seems like every time we come to Houston, I'm hitting good," said Lum, adding that the double was off a high, outside fast ball, the homer off a low, inside fast ball.

Rookie outfielder John Grubb's tie-breaking single sparked a five-run outburst in the seventh inning that boosted San Diego past the Giants. Jerry Morales and Clarence Gaston each drove in two runs for the Padres.

King of the Trotters

Richest Athlete? It's Herve Filion

WESTBURY, N.Y. (NEA) — To the high rollers who can look right down on the finish line of Roosevelt Raceway from behind plate glass, while caressing their fillet mignon, he is sometimes called "Oy vay."

That's Yiddish for "ouch, it hurts."

The true Gallic pronunciation is "er-VAY." That's for Herve Filion, the world's highest paid athlete.

More often than not he absorbs the cost of their fillet, and then some, so the "Oy vay" is the same as "Them Bums" was to Brooklyn. An endearment.

Herve Filion at the age of 33 has won more than 4,000 races, the highest total in the history of harness racing in the Western Hemisphere, for purses which have already exceeded $10 million!

Last year, his bustling yet, he went to the post 2,665 times, led the field at the finishing pole 605 times, collecting $2,473,265 — of which it's safe to say he banked more than half, since he also owned the winning horse 60 per cent of the time. All these figures are all-time U.S. Trotting Association records.

It's fearsome just to contemplate what kind of frenetic schedule Herve must have led, and is still leading, to compile those kinds of figures. At Aurora Downs, just outside Chicago, for instance, he handled the sulky rides in 20 races in one day! Afternoon and night.

He has raced on three different tracks in different states and even in different countries (the U.S. and Canada) the same day!

What makes Herve, who never got beyond the fifth grade, run?

A crafty, poor French Canadian kid's genuine hunger for money and security. Beyond that, a curiously provoked psyche.

For what you have to explore with him the Filion origins in a little, remote Quebec farming community. Angers.

"We had workhorses and road horses," he says, "because we didn't have a car. In those days my father would do anything to make a buck, to raise 10 kids — eight boys and two girls. When I was born, he left to go to work in the woods with three horses for three months, as a lumberjack."

"My father started racing as a hobby, on Sunday. Back in 1949 when I was nine years old, he bought his first horse for $300. My mother has got seven brothers and four sisters and they always come to visit so my mother said we got to do something on Sunday to get away from the house."

French Canadians have a traditional love for harness racing, particularly pacing. That first horse, a pacer, was called Pine Ridge Stella and at a country fair, when he was 12 years old, little Herve, whose feet didn't reach the stirrups, raced her for the first time and finished second.

"You didn't need license," recalls Herve. "It was just like a matinee today. She was good mare. She had perfect manner. When I was 13, a man from Montreal bought me a license for five dollar to race his horse, Guy Grattan. That was my first win."

His future life was committed but with a special mission. Papa Filion, who had increased his own stable to five horses, had blackened the family name.

"He had a horse which was a six-year-old and he changed the name and put him as a three-year-old," recounts Herve frankly. "He put a ringer in. He got caught after four months and he was outlawed for 10 years. It reflect on all the kids. You come into the track and they mention the name of Filion — t'ief or something like that — around Quebec and Montreal."

"So I said to myself, I like to push myself, be real successful in 'arness racing so they'll remember the name of Filion as long as there's 'arness racing. That was my drive."

In 1961, at the age of 21, he carried his campaign south across the border, to Vernon Downs, N.Y. All he could say in English was yes and no. (Later he married an English-speaking girl, Barbara, from Toronto, and now he can express himself volubly, with a quaint French-Canadian accent.)

"I was making 10 12 'ousand a year," he remembers, "and I was dreaming — for a kid who quit school in the fifth grade and had no education. It was the only thing I could do."

"I never dreamed one day I'd win over $100,000 a year. I never thought about that. I tell you something — back in 1964 I had ten 'ousand in the bank and I owned three horses. My first horse cost me 12 hundred. She bought me my first car, a 1958 Buick. Dat mare pick up sixty-four hundred first year I raced her."

The Filion fortune today, barely a decade later, encompasses Capital Hill Farm, which is valued at over a million dollars and includes 128 race horses. He owns a 46-acre farm in LaChute, Quebec, and plans to buy a big spread in New Jersey to house his racing stock. He also has a mod wardrobe, a big limousine, a $400 hairpiece and a growing family of three children to which he hustles home after the last race each night.

And the Filion name after all of this?

"It means the biggest thing in 'arness racing, in Quebec. I was named Canadian at 'lete of the year 'ree times. Trudeau gave me the Lou Marsh trophy in '69. That puts me with people like Bobby Orr, Phil Esposito and Gordie 'owe."

Let's 'ear it for "Oy Vay."

Wells Enters Plea Of Not Guilty

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Warren Wells, former Oakland Raiders wide receiver, Monday pleaded innocent to charges of public drunkenness, disturbing the peace and resisting arrest.

Municipal Court Judge George Brunn ordered Wells to appear Thursday when jury selection is to begin. Wells, 30, requested a trial by jury.

Already on probation for a 1969 attempted rape conviction, Wells was arrested May 5 after a verbal encounter with two officers in a local restaurant.

Prep Baseball Player Killed

BRANDT, Vt. (AP) — Joseph Moffett, 18, of Brandon died Monday after being struck in the chest by a pitched ball during baseball practice at Otter Valley Union High School, police said.

Police quoted witnesses as saying the youth had been taking batting practice when struck and that Moffett collapsed as he walked from the batting cage. The cause of death was not immediately determined.

Archibald Leads Voting

Little Nate Archibald of the Kansas City-Omaha Kings, the biggest scoring gun in the National Basketball Association in 1972-73, was the top vote getter for the league's all-star team. The other guard named was Jerry West of the Los Angeles Lakers.

At forward were Boston's John Havlicek and Spencer Haywood of the Seattle SuperSonics. Center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar of Milwaukee rounded out the team, which was selected by the basketball writers in the various NBA cities.

Some normal contracts are doomed to defeat, but there still may be a right way and a wrong way to play them.

South won the spade lead and saw that his only chance for nine tricks would be to drop the queen of clubs. He played out his ace and king. The queen failed to drop, but South did not groan, moan or stop dead. He continued with a third club without any signs of worry.

West was in with the queen and East had to make a discard. He thought a while and dropped the nine of spades.

This gave West a problem that he failed to solve. West shifted to the deuce of hearts and South had his nine tricks. We have to give South some credit for putting on the bold front, but he would not have made his contract against an alert East.

An alert East would not have sent a boy to do a man's job and would have discarded the jack, not the nine of spades. It was easy to read that West's lead was fourth best so the jack could be spared. Once it hit the table West would have had no problem and would have promptly cashed his four spades.

Gray Says White House Not Linked to Watergate

WASHINGTON (AP) — L. Patrick Gray III told Senate investigators the FBI never found any link connecting the White House with the Watergate wiretapping, an official digest of Gray's remarks shows.

Gray was further quoted as saying John W. Dean III assured him that he was relaying FBI reports directly and regularly to President Nixon.

Gray's remarks indicate he was unaware of the top-level coverup of the affair, or of reported attempts to enlist the CIA in the effort.

Gray quit as acting director of the FBI April 27, and Dean was fired three days later from his post as presidential counsel.

The digest of Gray's remarks flatly contradicts some earlier news accounts. Intended for private use by the Senate's special Watergate investigating committee, it was made available to The Associated Press by a Senate source.

Gray was interviewed by the Senate committee's staff last Thursday, and conflicting news accounts—based on various sources—began to surface late the following day.

Some quoted Gray as saying he had told Nixon of high-level White House involvement in the case, while another said Gray had reported that John D. Ehrlichman tried to impede the FBI's investigation and that Gray had reported this to Nixon.

But the digest of Gray's remarks shows he was aware only of "confusion" that he didn't consider normal for such an investigation, and that he told Nixon he thought this resulted from "either carelessness or indifference" by White House aides.

Thus, according to the Senate's official version, Gray didn't tell the President anything that necessarily would have made Nixon aware of a coverup by his own aides. Nixon said April 30 that he was repeatedly assured by those conducting investigations into Watergate that nobody in his administration was implicated.

The three-page digest summarizes and paraphrases Gray's remarks, giving few direct quotes. It gives this account:

Gray said he started investigating the Watergate incident after returning from a trip to California. "His first call from Ehrlichman came at 9:35 on the 21st advising him to be careful about leads," the document said.

Ehrlichman called again June 28 ordering Gray to cancel a meeting Gray had set up with Central Intelligence Agency officials to straighten out confusion over whether the CIA was interested in two witnesses the FBI sought to interview.

Gray said he and Ehrlichman argued about which of them was running the FBI's investigation. "Ehrlichman conceded that Gray was running it but the meeting was canceled anyway," the Senate paper said.

Later that day, June 28, Gray said he met with Ehrlichman and Dean and that Dean handed him documents from the White House safe of E. Howard Hunt, later convicted in the wiretapping.

Gray confirmed earlier reports that he destroyed these documents—reportedly forged State Department cables—on what he took to be orders from Ehrlichman and Dean.

Contrary to earlier reports, Gray said he held onto the documents for months before destroying them after last Christmas. Dean inquired twice about whether the destruction had been carried out, Gray said.

More than a week dragged by after the June 28 meeting with no resolution of the CIA-FBI conflict, Gray said. He had been told by CIA Director Richard Helms that the CIA had no interest in the case, but received word from Helms' deputy director, Lt. Gen. Vernon A. Walters, that the CIA wanted the FBI to postpone interviews with two witnesses.

Finally, on July 5, "Gray demanded of Walters a written memo from the CIA by 10:30 on the 6th as to any involvement." Thirty minutes before Gray's ultimatum ran out Walters personally delivered a memo stating that the CIA in fact had no interest in the two witnesses.

"Gray and Walters then began philosophizing concerning their two organizations and they came to the mutual conclusion that the President should be informed of the confusion ... and that this confusion was just not normal in most investigations," the digest said.

Gray spoke to the President minutes later, at 11:28 a.m., by telephone. Nixon was in Key Biscayne, Fla.; Gray was in Washington.

"Gray then told the President of the problem concerning confusion over CIA involvement of witnesses and that this was a result of either carelessness or indifference of White House personnel, and that this could be injurious to the agencies and could wound the President," the document said. "The President advised Gray to continue his investigation and Gray never had any problem thereafter."

The source who gave The AP the digest said Gray's exact words, not quoted in the document, were, "Mr. President, you are being wounded by men around you who are using the FBI and the CIA"

Gray said he was in constant touch with Dean during the FBI's Watergate probe, and passed on 82 separate reports. "Dean assured Gray that he was reporting directly and regularly to the President. Gray was not surprised at the President's Aug. 29 speech since at that time there was no evidence of involvement by any White House persons."

Nixon said in the Aug. 29 speech that Dean had conducted an investigation clearing everyone then employed by the administration and the White House.

Newsweek magazine reported this week that Dean had denied making such an investigation, a statement that doesn't square with what Gray says Dean told him.

Gray said he knows nothing of a report in The Washington Post last Oct. 24 which said Nixon reopened his investigation into the affair because Gray turned up links in the White House. "Gray stated that his investigation never found links to the White House," the digest said.

Farm Roundup

Firing of Agriculture Employees Not Planned

WASHINGTON (AP) — There is no plan in the Agriculture Department to fire two former Nixon-re-election employees who now are holding jobs in the agency, says Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Joseph R. Wright Jr.

The question was raised after Robert C. Odle, former White House aide and campaign official, left his USDA post on May 6 after five days on the job. Odle, who has said he was fired, had been hired as a "management counselor" at an annual salary rate of $26,898.

Wright, who oversees personnel and other administrative functions, said he understood Odle was "pretty upset" over losing his job. That job, Wright said, was a temporary assignment involving management review of two smaller agencies within the department.

"He never had a full-time job here," Wright told a reporter. "No, we're not going to have a purge of former campaign officials."

The two former Nixon campaign figures who hold key posts in the Agriculture Department are:

—Assistant Secretary Clayton Yeutter, who headed the farm drive last year for the Committee for the Re-election of the President. He oversees marketing and consumer services for the department, including meat inspection and food stamp operations.

—Stephen B. King, a former security figure for the Nixon campaign committee. It was King, according to Martha Mitchell who ripped a telephone from her California motel room and called a physician to administer a hypodermic sedative after the Watergate burglary last year. King now is chief job recruiter for USDA.

Yeutter previously served in the department as administrator of the Consumer and Marketing Service, now split up and under his supervision as an assistant secretary. He rejoined USDA last January after a year with the Nixon campaign committee.

King, a former FBI special agent, joined the department last December after serving with the Nixon campaign organization since May 1972. His main job now, according to Wright, is to help weed out requests for jobs from outside and to help with personnel transfers within the department.

POW Changes Opinion

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Former prisoner of war Lt. Cmdr. Joseph Charles Plumb Jr., told area youths Monday night he has changed his opinions of them in the three months he has been free.

"When I was released, I thought American youth was doing its thing with reckless abandon and with little respect for its elders," Plumb recalled as he spoke to the 17th annual awards ceremony of Junior Achievement, of Greater Kansas City. "Since then I have found out I was wrong."

"Kids are doing their own thing in many ways," continued the Overland Park, Kan., resident. "Doing your own thing is directly opposed to the Communist philosophy of doing the state's thing and nothing else."

Plumb, who participated in Junior Achievement activities while a student at Shawnee Mission North High School in the late 1950s, received the organization's first graduate of the year award.

Field Work Hampered

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Surplus soil moisture still prevails over most of Missouri and only one day was suitable for field work last week, according to the state Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.

The service reported sunny skies and spring winds were beginning to dry out the sodden fields, and farmers were prepared to jump into full operation as quickly as possible.

Plowing advanced three points last week to 17 per cent completion — far behind 1972 when plowing was virtually finished by this date.

The corn crop was only five per cent planted, lagging behind last year when planting had reached the halfway mark.

Shooting Death Ends Airport Blackmail

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — "He just wanted his kids and was at the end of his patience," said a former roommate of a man shot and killed by FBI marksmen.

Early Monday morning, 25-year-old William H. Abernathy took two guns and two men to the top of a fuel tank at Portland International Airport. He threatened to blow up the 840,000-gallon tank by noon unless his ex-wife and two children were brought to him.

One minute before the deadline, FBI agents shot and killed him. One of the other men had escaped earlier. The other man was not hurt.

Phillip Moss, the ex-roommate, earlier had climbed the tank to try to talk Abernathy into surrendering.

"He told me he saw a lot of people die in Vietnam for no reason, and I told him I did not and that I didn't want to see him die up there for no reason. But he said there was some reason for his action."

"Finally, after passing up early chances to disarm him, I went for his rifle. I got a hand on it near the stock, but Abernathy is too fast. He just jerked it out of my hand and pointed it at me. I knew it was over, and I climbed down the tank stairway."

Moss said Abernathy felt his ex-wife, Nancy Lynn, was hiding his children—Jennifer, 3, and Scott, 9 months—from him. He had given up hope of ever seeing them again, Moss said.

"Gee, how proud he was of his children," Moss said. "He talked about them all the time and would show everybody their pictures."

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING ON REZONING APPLICATION

Whereas, The City Planning and Zoning Commission and the City Council of Sedalia, Missouri, have received application from the Tallman Company of Sedalia, Missouri, a Corporation requesting the following described property:

Beginning at the intersection of the North line of North Broadway Street and the West line of Ohio Avenue (also known as U.S. Route 750, both Streets in the City of Sedalia, Missouri), running thence North along the West line of Ohio Avenue to a point which is 125 feet North of the North line of North Broadway, thence running West to the East line of Missouri Avenue at a point which is 125 feet, North of the North line of North Broadway, thence Southwesterly along the East line of Missouri Avenue to the North line of North Broadway, thence East along the North line of North Broadway to the place of beginning be changed and rezoned from Zone R-1 to Zone M-2 and that said application be acted upon as provided in Ordinance No. 6741. Therefore, in compliance with Chapter 89 of the Revised Statutes of Missouri, 1959, other applicable statutes, and said Zoning Ordinance No. 6741, said City Planning and Zoning Commission will meet in the Council Chambers, City Hall Building, Sedalia, Missouri, at 7:30 P.M. on Thursday, May 17, 1973, for the purpose of a Public Hearing in relation to said application to change the zone and rezone said real estate, at which time and place, parties in interest and citizens shall have an opportunity to be heard.

Dated at Sedalia, Missouri, this 30th day of April, 1973.

Army Releasing Nearly 10 Per Cent of Reserves

WASHINGTON (AP) — A little less than 10 per cent of the Army's reserve officers will be notified next month they are being released from active duty.

The Army said Monday that the 4,900 officers are no longer needed in the post-Vietnam era. Only officers below the rank of lieutenant colonel are being asked to leave the service by Oct. 1.

Army officers in ranks higher than major are thinned out by encouraging their retirement, rather than outright discharge, said the Army.

'Militarization' Of World Continues

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — "The militarization of the world continues unabated," the Stockholm International Peace Research Institute reported in its fourth yearbook Tuesday.

The institute, financed by the Swedish Parliament, was set up in 1966 as an independent center for research into problems of peace and war. Its yearbooks are used widely in international forums as authoritative sources on armament and disarmament.

The report today said:

—Since the signing of the first Strategic Arms Limitation agreement last May the number of nuclear warheads deployed on strategic weapons increased from about 5,890 to more than 7,040 in the United States and from 2,170 to 2,260 in the Soviet Union.

—At least 26 underground nuclear explosions were conducted by the United States and the Soviet Union in 1972. Five atmospheric tests were carried out by China and France.

—Of 1,268 satellites launched by the United States and the Soviet Union since 1957, 47 per cent have been for military reconnaissance.

—The number of arms-producing countries in the Third World is increasing.

—The import of major weapons into the Third World increased 10 per cent annually since 1950, more than twice as fast as the countries' Gross National Product.

—Nearly 400,000 tons of napalm were used in the Indochina war compared with 14,000 tons in World War II.

—The world spent about $190 billion annually for military items in the last three years.

—The insanity of these levels of military expenditure is impressively indicated by the fact that the sums spent annually on arms are about equal to the total national income of the poorer half of mankind," the report commented.

Propose Visit To Hanoi Friday

SAIGON (AP) — The United States Tuesday proposed another visit by an American team to Hanoi on Friday to discuss procedures for the return from North Vietnam of the remains of 23 Americans who died while prisoners of war.

An American spokesman said the North Vietnamese replied that they would answer the proposal later.

A U.S. military team flew to Hanoi last Friday to visit the 23 graves and found that the remains of 20 of the men had been moved 35 miles outside the North Vietnamese capital.

The North Vietnamese said there wasn't time during the Americans' five-hour stay for them to visit the 20 graves and that procedure for the return of the remains would be discussed at a meeting Tuesday of the U.S.-Vietnamese joint military team in Saigon. But U.S. officials reported no progress today.

President Nguyen Van Thieu said Tuesday that lasting peace Vietnam depends on whether the Communists renounce their plans to take over South Vietnam militarily and agree to negotiate its political future.

Addressing graduates of the National Police Academy in Thu Duc, Thieu spelled out four conditions he said will determine "whether true peace will be restored or not."

1. Will the Communists respect the cease-fire and "renounce their dream of invasion, massacre, assassination and harassment?"

2. Will there be serious negotiations between the Viet Cong and this government for a speedy election?

3. "Will they respect the election if it occurs?"

4. "And finally, will the Communists continue to instigate a future war or only accept peace as a step to rest and start a new war?"

A Free Press Protects Your Free Speech...

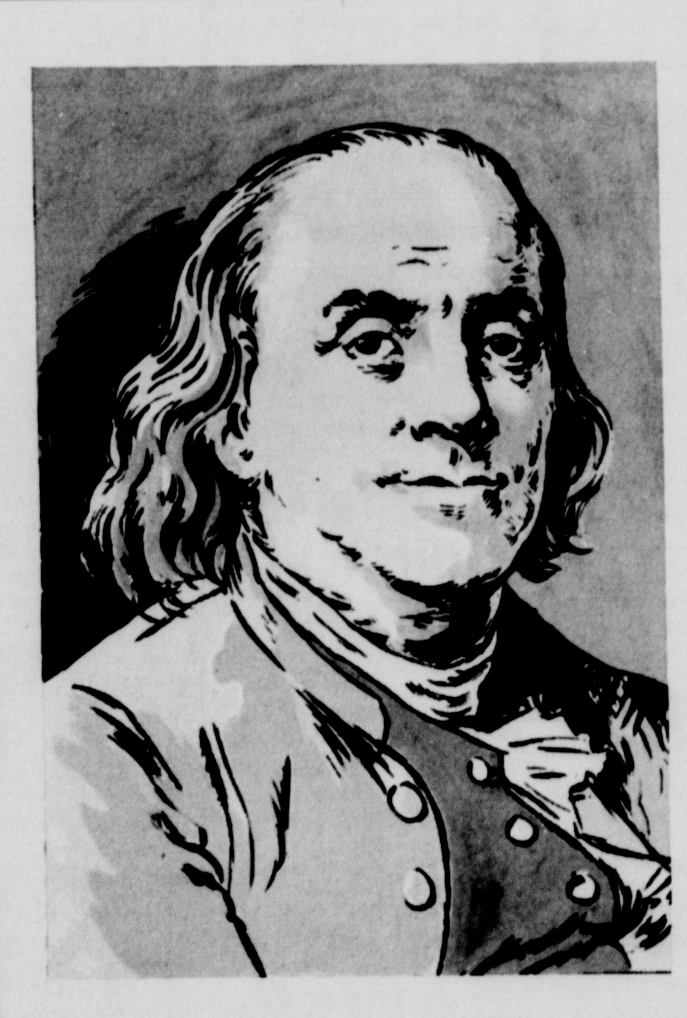

Judges are jailing reporters with increasing frequency, because they refuse to reveal news sources. The result can only be a drying up of these sources of information and impede your right to know what's happening in your government.

Free speech and a free press are guaranteed by the Constitution to the people generally — not to any individual or business.

Everyone also has the right to know what's being offered in the Marketplace. The right of choice in all goods and services keeps the system of competition working for everyone's progress.

Consequently, when our freedom of the press is restricted, your free speech is also restricted.

Your free speech depends on a free press.

Here's What Benjamin Franklin

said about the importance of a Free Press:

"If all printers were determined not to print anything till they were sure it would offend nobody, there would be very little printed."

Here's What Robert F. Kennedy

Senator of the United States

said about the importance of a Free Press:

"In my opinion, the newspapers are equal to the courts — and sometimes ahead of the courts in our system — in protecting the people's fundamental rights."

The next time you get mad at a news story, remember that a free press provides you with the information that keeps our country free.

This public service advertisement is published by The Sedalia Democrat and The Sedalia Capital in the interest of better public understanding of the meaning and intent of press freedom.

CLASSIFIED DISPLAY RATES

$2.10 per column inch each insertion. Local classified display contract rates on request. Contract accounts must be paid before the 15th of the month.

CLASSIFIED SCHEDULE

ALL READER CLASSIFIED advertising copy will be accepted at the Democrat-Capital office until 9:30 a.m. Monday through Friday for publication on the day received in the afternoon Democrat and the following morning Capital editions. Copy received after that time will start publication in the Democrat on the following day.

READER CLASSIFIED advertising for the Sunday edition will be accepted until 9:30 a.m. Saturday.

CLASSIFIED DISPLAY advertising (one column one inch or larger) will be accepted until 4:00 p.m. Friday for the Sunday edition; 4:00 p.m. Saturday for the Monday Democrat, Tuesday Capital edition; 4:00 p.m. on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday or Thursday for the Democrat edition the next day and the Capital edition on the morning following the Democrat edition.
